DEAFNESS AND DISCHARGES FROM THE EAR.

A FEW WORDS OF PRACTICAL ADVICE, BY DR. H. RUNGE, by LICHTHEILL, Author of "A Popular Treatise on Deafness," "Lectures on Catarrh," and "Electrical Diseases of the Mucous Membrane," &c. &c.

Office and Residence, No. 108 West 34th-st.

In many cases of deafness that present themselves to us for treatment, the loss of hearing can be clearly traced to some trifling aural complaint which commenced during infancy or childhood, and which was allowed to run its course unchecked and unattended, though the whole difficulty might have been completely removed by a few weeks' suitable treatment applied in time. Parents and others having the care of children incur indeed a grave responsibility if they fail to procure competent medical advice in cases where so precious a sense as that of hearing is involved. Often there are no visible symptoms denoting a diseased condition of the ear. The child merely suffers from a slight but growing indistinctness of hearing, which assumes the appearance of inattention, or absent-mindedness, and misconstrued a frequent repetition of questions before a correct answer is obtained. The real cause of this apparent inattention is scarcely ever suspected, and we know of many instances where children have been strictly and persistently punished by parents and teachers for inattention, carelessness or stupidity, when the fault was entirely due to defective hearing, a fact which was immediately discovered by accident or revealed by a stranger or specialist. It would be very desirable, in all cases where a child appears habitually inattentive, or frequently fails to catch the meaning of words which are addressed to it in ordinary tone of voice, to institute a proper investigation of the condition of the hearing power.

DISCHARGE FROM THE EAR.

While there may be some excuse for instinct under the foregoing circumstances, owing to the absence of any noticeable features calculated to arouse suspicion, no such excuse can be urged in cases of discharge from the ear, for the disease at once reveals itself to the eye and to smell, being, in fact, as offensive to one sense as it is to the other.

The discharge usually results from some inflammatory process of the ear, produced by sudden fever, measles, cold or other cause, and varies in different cases, and often in the same individual, at different times. Usually it is a thick, purulent, greenish-yellow matter, occasionally streaked with blood. At times it is of a viscid and ropy nature, and again it may resemble melted cheese in appearance and consistency.

In some cases it merely seals the lining of the auditory canal, while in others it is so copious as to pour from the ear, and thus excoriate the surrounding tissues, which presents a new and inflamed appearance.

The discharge is always characterized by a musty, fetid odor, but in some cases it is so highly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself and to others.

Weakness from the ear, if allowed to continue for any length of time, is dangerous both to hearing and to the system generally. In some cases it occasions total deafness, while in all the hearing suffers to a more or less extent, and acts always without commendable injury to the hearing power. Aside from its effects on hearing, the disease is apt to stop with its immediate vicinity, as violent pains, paralysis, and other serious disturbances, results necessary to be considered, all which can be avoided by the prompt authority of the diseased aural organ at the outset; whereas neglect, the bane, to which the influences of an uncongenial climate is more especially subject, invites disaster.

Many persons neglect the slightest symptom of their children's ears, in the hope that they will outgrow the difficulty. No hope has ever proved more fallacious.

It is the experience of all aurists of repute, that diseases of the ear are best treated by the growth of the child; that spontaneous cures scarcely if ever take place, but that on the contrary, as the child grows up the disease becomes more and more confirmed and constitutional, and more destructive to hearing. Often, also too often is the case that by the time the parents are forced to perceive the culpable inadvertence of their neglect in this respect, irreparable mischief has been done, and valuable hearing has been lost, which probably no amount of human skill can entirely restore.

TREATMENT.

It should be borne in mind that in affections of the ear, generally, when it is thought with the greatest danger to hearing, and that "let alone" theories are not confined to result in serious injury. We cannot too strongly condemn the practice of those physicians who, through ignorance or carelessness, advise patients to let diseases of the ear alone, and endeavor to inspire confidence in the healing process of nature. In our experience we have had repeated demonstrations of the fact that such advice is nothing short of malpractice, and deserving of the severest censure.

In their earlier stages diseases of the ear yield readily to skillful medical attendance, and even in cases of long standing, and where the hearing is seriously impaired, an entire cure can often be effected by appropriate means.

Desirable results, however, can only be expected from the attendance of a physician who has made himself familiar with the subject by special study, and who has acquired sufficient practical experience to gain a mastery over aural diseases. Medical science cannot be held responsible for the frequent failures or possible injury resulting from treatment when administered by incompetent or inexperienced hands.

DR. LICHTHEILL has made diseases of the ear his particular study for nearly twenty years, and in the course of his practice achieved unusual success in many difficult cases, and even in some of a seemingly hopeless character. To any one interested he is prepared to furnish references of the highest responsibility, to parties who have been under his professional care, in proof of his assertion.

DR. LICHTHEILL can be daily consulted from 9 A. M. till 3 P. M. at his residence, No. 108 West 34th-st.

Trial of the Murderers of Dr. Robinson in 1866—Positive Identification of Two of Them.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 14.—JOHN BRELSFORD, the fourth man charged with being one of the murderers of Dr. ROBINSON in 1866, was arrested this morning, and all the four accused were brought before Judge MCKEAN for examination. The testimony was startling. One witness testified to having seen the flood committed. He was only a short distance from the spot at the time, and positively identified JOHN L. BLYTHE and JAMES TOMS as two of the murderers. The victim was first struck with a short sword upon the head, and in falling was shot under the left eye. The witness described the whole affair as he saw it from the shadow of a fence, the night being a bright moonlight one. The Court-room was densely crowded, and upon the identification of BLYTHE and TOMS there was much excitement. Further hearing was postponed until to-morrow morning.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE.

Burning of a Building in Mansfield, Ohio —A Man and Woman Killed by Falling Walls.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.—The Times & Chronicle has a special from Mansfield, Ohio, today, which says that H. C. HODGES' three-story brick building, on North Park-street, in this city, was destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock this morning. The building was occupied as a grocery and leather store, printing office and law office. The loss is about $25,000; the building is insured for $12,000, in Western companies; the stock is insured for $15,000, mostly in Eastern companies. While half a dozen persons were carrying articles out of a saloon in a wooden building, the walls of the brick building adjoining fell, smashing the wooden building to the ground, killing JOHN KLEIN, Jr., and Miss MATTESON, daughter of the proprietor of the saloon, and dangerously injuring another man.

MEXICO.

Mazatlan Still Held by Rebels—The Pacific Coast Generally in Favor of Juarez.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—The Mexican revolutionists still hold Mazatlan, and are fortifying it to resist the attack of the troops raised in Sinaloa by Gov. BUCHNA. Lower California, Sonora, Colima and Guerrero are quiet. The advices from the Pacific Coast of Mexico on the whole are favorable to the Juarez Government.

SOUTHERN CLAIMS.

Report of the Commission to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The Southern Claims Commission made their report to Congress to-day. They say that, deeming the act of Congress under which they were appointed as designed to apply to matters of municipal legislation, and not to affect rights standing upon international law, they held that where the claimants were an alien when the claim accrued, his naturalization since the war does not remove his disability. Also, that the party claiming to be loyal must prove his loyalty. This is a fact to be established by proof, and, in fact to be presumed. Voluntary contribution to an insurrectionary State during the war is prima facie evidence of disloyalty, and must be rebutted by satisfactory evidence. Claims have come from those who served in the rebel army, and the Commissioners hold that such services proof of disloyalty.

The whole number of claims presented up to the end of November is 19,000, and the entire amount $80,000,000. The number of claims not exceeding in amount $2,000 is 8,300, and the number exceeding that amount, 1,700—the 6,600 claims averaging about $1,350. Each amount to about $11,500. The 1,700 larger claims amount to $14,625,000. The Commissioners transmit reports on 800 cases which they have examined and decided. The number disallowed for want of satisfactory proof of loyal adherence to the cause and Government of the United States is about 200. Some were rejected for insufficient proof upon the material points. The whole number rejected is 268. Of the claimants found loyal, forty have served in the Union Army, some have aided our military operations as scouts and guides, while others have been arrested and imprisoned, and cruelly treated by the rebels. Among those whose claims have been disallowed, about forty served in the rebel army, and some as guards at Andersonville. Others have civil offices under the Confederacy, or furnished supplies to the rebel army, or voted for the ordinances of secession, or sworn allegiance to the Confederate Government, or have otherwise given aid and comfort to the rebellion. In the cases decided, and herewith reported, the amount claimed is $1,656,897; the amount allowed is $344,168; and the amount disallowed $1,312,189.

Capture of Two Express-Car Robbers After a Severe Fight.

MEMPHIS, Dec. 14.—A private dispatch from ALLAN PINKERTON states that, after a severe fight, two of the men who robbed the express-car on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad some two months ago were captured on Monday last near Verona, Miss., by detectives. During the past two months the Southern Express Company has had a number of detectives on the track for these men. One of the robbers is still at large.

A Double Murder in Newfoundland.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 14.—The steamer City of Halifax arrived to-night, bringing news of a terrible double murder. Three weeks ago a woman named GRHAN was found dead at Spaniards Bay under suspicious circumstances. A jury investigated the case and returned a verdict of death from natural causes. Police Inspector FOLEY, of St. Johns, went to Spaniards Bay and demanded another inquest, which was held, with the same result. Still unsatisfied, FOLEY remained and worked up the case. He learned that a brother of the woman, named GARRET SAYERS, who had been supported by her husband, was missing. After a long search FOLEY found SAYER'S body buried in a dung-heap and horribly mutilated. GRHAN, the husband of the woman, and a servant girl named HAMILTON, were arrested on evidence not made public, but understood to be conclusive, that both Mrs. GRHAN and her brother were murdered by the two prisoners.

EUROPE.

Investigating Capitulations by the French Armies—The Orleans Princes —The Ex-Empress Eugenie at Gibraltar.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—In the National Assembly, today, Gen. CISSEY, Minister of War, made a statement in explanation of the delays of the Commission which was some time since appointed to inquire into the capitulations of the French fortifications and armies during the late war. The Minister said the Commission had examined into the facts connected with the surrender of six fortresses of a secondary character, the commandants of which have been sentenced to undergo punishment according to army regulation. On Saturday the Commission will commence an investigation into the capitulation of the fortress and army of Sedan, and subsequently will turn their attention to Metz.

It is reported that the ORLEANS Princes have determined to take their seats in the Assembly at an early day, and that they will, when there, act with the party of the Right Centre.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The Provincial Correspondence regards the message of President THIERS to the Assembly as a fresh pledge of the pacific intentions of the French Government.

MRS. WHARTON'S TRIAL.

Testimony of the Nurse of Gen. Ketchum —Argument on the Admission of Mr. Van Ness' Evidence.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 14.—The trial of Mrs. WHARTON was resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. HARRY W. SNOWDEN was called: Witness resides in Baltimore; has known Mrs. WHARTON since last Spring; did not know Gen. KETCHUM; on the 28th of June went to nurse a sick man in Mrs. WHARTON'S house, and was summoned by her to the room of Gen. KETCHUM; started to go, and Dr. WILLIAMS then appeared and accompanied witness; Gen. KETCHUM seemed very ill; witness describes minutely Gen. KETCHUM'S symptoms; in the judgment of witness, Gen. KETCHUM was in a condition convulsions, sinking at intervals into a stupor; last time saw him alive was about half-past twelve o'clock; Mrs. WHARTON stated to Mrs. HUSTON that she had prepared Gen. KETCHUM'S medicine, and at Mrs. WHARTON'S request, witness administered the dose. (Dr. WILLIAMS was here called to the stand, and he prepared a dose of yellow jessamine, such as he usually made.) Cross-examined: Witness, resuming, stated that the medicine, as compared by Dr. WILLIAMS, did not have the same appearance as the dose prepared by Mrs. WHARTON, and administered by him to Gen. KETCHUM, which had a thick or cloudy lead-colored appearance, whereas the preparation now before him was clear and transparent; forty additional drops were added to the preparation; it was still unlike that given to Gen. KETCHUM; witness noticed as a peculiar circumstance that when the spoon was in Gen. KETCHUM'S mouth, it was clenched so as to start a front tooth from the socket and make it bleed; was present when chloroform and chloral was administered; it seemed to relieve his agony and quiet him.

On cross-examination witness stated that he had placed tartar emetic in a tumbler with jessamine and water, and it did not produce the color he observed in the dose administered by him to Gen. KETCHUM; witness said they laudanum was also placed in a tumbler with tartar emetic and jessamine, and this mixture produced a brown color. Gas light in some lights might have a gray or lead color.

EUGENIA VAN NESS testified that he has resided in Baltimore about eighteen years; has known Mrs. WHARTON about nine years; was at her house about the 28th of June, while Gen. KETCHUM was there.

Mr. STERETT: Do not answer the question I am about to ask you until you have heard from the Court. I wish you to state to the jury how you came to be at Mrs. WHARTON'S house on that day, if well or sick, and describe your feelings and symptoms fully, and how you happened to be taken sick there?

The defense objected, and a long argument ensued, which continued to the hour of adjournment.

Messrs. HAGNER and THOMAS, for the defense, claimed that facts in regard to a criminal act could not be received in evidence to sustain a charge of alleged subsequent unlawful action which had no connection with the former, and that it was not competent to place before the jury sworn to try the case of Gen. KETCHUM, the facts in the case of VAN NESS, while he was pending the entire separate and distinct indictment from, and had no connection whatever with, the case now on trial. The prosecution contended that, as they relied upon circumstantial evidence, it was proper to introduce the testimony of Mr. VAN NESS, in order to show the presence of poison in the house of the prisoner, as an important link in the chain of circumstances by which they expected to connect the prisoner with the poisoning of Gen. KETCHUM, and claimed that the testimony of Mr. VAN NESS was properly a part of the res gestæ. Attorney-General STERETT closed for the State, after which the Court adjourned until 10 A. M. to-morrow.

THE WEATHER.

Symptoms and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14—7 P. M.—The low barometer in New-York State has moved north-eastward beyond our stations. The high barometer to the North-west has moved south-east into the Ohio Valley, and is now stretching north-eastward. Cloud and snow have prevailed in New-England and Western New-York and Pennsylvania. Brisk winds have prevailed for a short time in the Lake regions, where northwinds and rainy barometer are now reported. Partially cloudy and clear weather have prevailed on the Atlantic coast, from Cape Cod to North Carolina and westward. An area of low barometer has developed in the Gulf, and an area of north-easterly winds and rain has overspread north-westward to South Carolina. The barometer has fallen during the day in the North-west, with south-westerly wind and threatening weather. The barometer in Oregon has begun to fall with southerly winds.

PROBABILITIES.

Falling barometer and rain will probably advance on Friday north-easterly along the Atlantic coast, north-westerly winds back to north-east in New-York and New-England, and the barometer fall with increasing southerly winds from the upper lakes westward; rising barometer with cool northerly winds extend from Alabama westward; falling barometer and cloudy weather on the Oregon coast. Dangerous winds are not anticipated for our coasts this evening.

Wreck at the Entrance to Halifax Harbor.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 14.—The bark Breadalbane, with coal, from Little Glace Bay, for Halifax and New-York, went ashore this morning at Devil's Island, at the entrance of this harbor. The carpenter and a seaman got into a boat to examine the shore, but the painter parted, and the boat has not since been seen. The mate got into the other boat, which was upset, but he was washed ashore safely. The rest of the crew are still on board the vessel, which is in a bad position. Assistance has been sent.

THE INTERNATIONALS.

Unconditional Surrender of the Board of Police—The Parade Prohibited and the Police Only Ordered to Prevent a Breach of the Peace—Now Call from the Society.

Another meeting of the Board of Police was held yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, to consider the vexed question of the Sunday parade of the Internationals. The entire Board was present, including the Mayor, and after assembling in the room of President SMITH, the first business presented was a motion to admit the reporters who were assembled in the anteroom. This motion, however, only obtained the votes of Mayor HALL and Commissioner BARR, and was consequently defeated. Commissioner BOSWORTH then offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That so much of the order of the 8th inst. relating to the parade of the International Societies on Sunday next as prohibits the said organizations from parading on that day, be and it is hereby rescinded.

Resolved, That the Superintendent be and he is hereby directed to issue such general instructions to prevent a breach of the peace on the occasion of such procession, and to protect the public from disorder and violence.

In supporting these resolutions, Commissioner BOSWORTH said:

By the law of this State Sunday is recognized as a Divine institution. There are numerous statutes prohibiting its profanation by specifying a multiplicity of acts which they declare it shall be unlawful to do on that day. These statutes all servile labor and work, except works of necessity, and prohibit public sports on that day, and, of course, prohibit political processions. The statutes expressly prohibit any and every person from "obstructing the free passage of any highway to any place of public worship within the distance" of two miles of the place where any religious society shall be actually assembled for religious worship, or from disturbing the order or solemnities of the meeting by indecent behavior, within or by noise outside of it. The Police force is especially directed "to enforce every law relating to the observance of Sunday," as well as to preserve the public peace. The procession which proposes to parade on the 17th inst. was a political procession; and, for aught that appears, the procession might be on some day when it could be had without shocking the religious sense of the community, or violating any law, human or divine, or disturbing societies engaged in religious worship. By the published programme the procession was to commence its march at 2 P. M. The line of march passes some three miles, embraces about as many houses of religious worship as could be found on any line of the same length. In many of these places the exercises commence at 2½, and persons going to and engaged in worship in some of them, would necessarily be disturbed. This Board was called upon to protect the religious societies from disturbance on that day. They asked what the law secures to them as an absolute right, and the statute directs the Police to enforce the observance of these laws. I think the International Societies, if left to their own counsels, uninfluenced by advice and appeals to popular prejudice from those not of their order, would have respected the law and had their parade on some other day. But it so happens that the secular Press of this City, with but few exceptions, condemn the order as a violation of the rights of the citizen, as ill-timed and arbitrary, and in effect advise the Internationalists to parade in defiance of the law and of the order; and the manner in how presented it is not a case where only those who originally would have formed the procession persist in an avowed purpose to violate the law, but so much of the entire community as these journals represent as to convolutions, feelings, and purposes, co-operate with the Internationalists, and to effect, if possible, by terrors, urge them to parade regardless of consequences. Under such circumstances any violent resistance which may be made to the order, and any deplorable casualties that might unfortunately occur in enforcing it, would be due full as much to the advice and encouragement thus unexpectedly tendered to the Internationalists, as to them, if left to form their own conclusions as to duty and propriety, without this extraneous influence. Under such circumstances it is more discreet, in my judgment, for the Police Commissioners not to use force to prevent the parade, than to prevent it, with the possible loss of life of the innocent as well as the guilty. The Legislature, by such laws as may be deemed just, should regulate the whole subject of street processions, whether on week days or Sundays, by such explicit provisions that every citizen of common understanding, equally with the well-trained lawyer, may understand what is permitted and what is prohibited. The question must be met, and the Police authorities, in my judgment, would be unwise in precipitating a crisis which may end in bloodshed, by persisting in a course of action which, although legal, is evidently opposed to the feelings and convictions of the present hour of the great majority of the community. I shall therefore vote to rescind so much of the order as instructs the Superintendent to prevent the parade on Sunday, but shall vote to instruct him to take all necessary measures to prevent any breach of the peace, and to protect the public from violence and disorder.

Mayor HALL offered the following as a substitute for the resolutions before the Board:

Whereas, A funeral procession is contemplated for Sunday next by a society called the International; and,

Whereas, The Society has applied to the Police for permission to sanction the parade by the presence and protection of the police; and

Whereas, Other citizens have applied to the Board to prevent it.

Resolved, As the sense of this Board, that the whole subject be referred where it belongs, to the President and Superintendent, under the action of this Board, taken May 16, 1871.

After a long informal discussion the vote was taken on the amendment with the following result: Yeas—Mayor HALL, Commissioner BARR. Nays—Commissioners SMITH and MANIERRE, Messrs. BOSWORTH and BOSWORTH. The Mayor then remarked:

I was not present when the original order was granted, and the first I knew of it was reading it in the papers, but I will vote for the resolution; yet I believe that the responsibility of Police rests toward the procession is still with the Superintendent and President as it was last July on a similar occasion. My vote is, therefore, really rather of a suggestion and opinion, and not of judgment than a vote, but I take the full responsibility in any aspect of it. I, however, disagree with the legal conclusions of Commissioner BOSWORTH on presenting the resolution, that the Sunday laws forbid the procession. Even if they did so forbid, I think that they are laws prohibited and punished under a civil penalty, with which the Police have naught to do. Nor do I think that they relate to the City of New-York, which is covered by exclusive special enactment on the subject, and thus New-York City is impliedly exempt from the operation of the ancient Sunday laws about traveling and meeting-houses, and refer to my views of yesterday.

A vote being taken on the resolutions presented by Judge BOSWORTH, they were adopted as follows: Yeas—Commissioners BOSWORTH, BARR and Mayor HALL. Nays—Commissioners SMITH and MANIERRE.

The immediate question being thus disposed of, the Mayor presented the following:

Resolved, That the Board of Police hereby memorialize the Legislature for the passage of an act regulating processions, and that Commissioner BOSWORTH be requested to submit the draft of such an act for legislative consideration, and in the meantime the Mayor submit the following for the basis thereof:

AN ACT to regulate the use by processions of streets within cities.

The People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. It is hereby declared lawful for all persons to form processions in, and for purposes of public assembling, meeting, fete or festival on streets within any city, but subject to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. Any street procession and the persons forming it are hereby prohibited from using any street upon the surface of which there is a railway track or tracks, by marching upon or along the said track or tracks; and the free passage of cars upon railway tracks shall not be hindered with by the formation, halt or march of any such procession or of the persons composing it. Whenever any procession shall find it necessary to march across a railway track the portion of said procession which is so marching in platoons of the width of one or contracted said track shall come to a halt, in order to permit said car to proceed.

SEC. 3. At least within six hours preceding the forming or marching of any procession, (except one of the Militia of the State,) notice in writing of the chief officer thereof shall, in writing, notify the Mayor or Police commissioner of the City of the object, purpose and time of such procession, and it may be a lawful order of said Mayor or Police commissioner, forbidding any such procession (or forbidding marching upon portions of the street in width to be specified) through certain streets to crowded thoroughfares through which said procession may move, and when so forbidden the organization of such procession shall be responsible that the designation is observed.

SEC. 4. No procession except the military or benevolent, or religious purposes, shall be allowed to march with any music or instrument of music, and in either of the latter cases shall be accompanied with music, the said music shall cease within one block of approaching or passing any church or meeting-house, or hospital or asylum, during the time of meeting, which shall be the hours religious services are there performed. No cannon or firearms shall be discharged or Sunday in connection with any procession except within limits of its own city or public ground, by permission of the owners thereof.

SEC. 5. Any bystander who shall unjustifiably use violence, without intent to take or without taking life, toward any person or persons within a procession shall be punished by fine not exceeding $500, or imprisonment in the City Prison not exceeding one year, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court before which he is convicted with imprisonment not with fine.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of the public authorities of any city to suitably protect any procession which may be marching or assembled, or about to assemble on imminent breach of the peace.

SEC. 7. It shall be a misdemeanor for any person to violate the prohibitions of this act.

This proposition of the Mayor was mildly discussed for a few minutes, and then laid upon the table by a vote of 3 to 2, and at 5 o'clock the Board adjourned, and the reporters were immediately informed, with the sanction of the Commissioners, of all that had passed. That the action of the Board had been seriously awaited in, at least, one quarter, was evident from the fact that during the afternoon President SMITH was called to the door of the Board room to say asking to be informed of the decision of the Board at the earliest possible moment. A reply was sent immediately after the adjournment.

The Federal Council of the "Internationals" met at No. 49 Grand-street, last night. The members were jubilant over the decision of the Police Commissioners, and were much pleased with Mr. BARR'S report of his visit to Albany. A committee of three was appointed to draft a new call, which proved to be as follows:

The International Working Men's Association to the People of New-York:

Since the beginning of this century, the working classes, more enlightened, knowing the inferiority of their condition all over the world, fought for emancipation and liberty—at times victorious and at times defeated—but they have always been the victims. In France, in England, in Ireland, Poland, Italy, Germany, and lately in Cuba, their blood has sprinkled the earth, they died bravely by thousands, and from each drop of their sacred blood has sprung up an avenger to continue the holy battle. We citizens whose fathers died to make this land free from despotism, an inheritance that our duty is to preserve inviolate, shall we remain behind and contented? Shall we be the only ones who follow so nobly the example set by them? No; their cause is ours. The solidarity that binds all men and enthrones all over the world makes it a duty to honor their memory and to raise our voice for the condemnation of these barbarous slaughterers. It is for these purposes that we invite all citizens, male or female, all organized bodies and all trades unions, to join the funeral procession, which will take place on Sunday, Dec. 17, 1871.

The procession will organize at Cooper Institute at 1 o'clock P. M.

All citizens desiring to aid the procession by its decoration, and all bodies wishing to assist in the organization of the cortege, will send their addresses to Dr. DESCHERE, No. 488 Fourth-avenue; A. FLAUBAND, No. 20 East Thirty-fourth-street; E. FRANCOIS, No. 207 Sixth-avenue; Note Zeit office, No. 13 Chatham-street; CONSTANT CHRISTEMBERT, No. 62 Grand-street; Dr. DELIENTHAL, No. 201 East Seventeenth-street.

The resolutions unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

What the Boston Pilgrims are Doing With the Abstinence.

The Medico Legal Society met last evening at the hall of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, corner of Ninth-avenue and Twenty-third-street. Dr. STEPHEN ROGERS was in the chair, and Dr. FANNIE BEACH acted as Recording Secretary. A paper was first read on poisoning by Dr. WOOSTER BEACH, and then came the report of the Committee on Criminal Abortion, which was at great length, and treated the subject in the fullest manner. It was very clearly read by JAS. O'DEA, the President of the Committee, and its gist was to recommend a change in the laws so as to make it should be simply a felony without any specific denomination, and its penalty should be imprisonment for not less than four years. This would give the Judge the power in aggravated cases, such as those of professional abortionists like ROSENKRANTZ, to sentence the criminals to imprisonment for life. The report was unanimously adopted, and a committee was appointed consisting of Dr. S. ROGERS, the President; W. A. HAMMOND, Judge REDFORD and Dr. O'DEA to wait on the Governor, and through him present it to the Legislature. There was a very numerous attendance among whom were many ladies.

Mysterious Case of River Piracy—A Detective in Company with One of the Prisoners.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, BARTLY GROGHANAN and JAMES WHELAN were jointly arraigned, before Recorder HACKETT, for grand larceny. GROGHANAN claimed a separate trial, and the following evidence was elicited:

On the 26th of September twelve bundles of salted hides were sent from No. 4 Frankfort-street to Pier No. 16 East River, consigned to MURRAY, FERRIS & Co. The watchman at the pier testified that Detective DOYLE called upon him, and conversed with him for some time, during which he could not see the shed on which the hides were stored; but before and after he kept strict watch.

Officer THOMAS MURPHY, Fourth Precinct, Police, on duty at Pier No. 16, saw Detective DOYLE, of the river squad, in company with the prisoner WHALEN at the corner of Peck-slip, and afterward saw them enter a coffee and liquor store; he stood for a moment, and WHALEN came out and watched him. Witness crossed over to Pier No. 16 on hearing a boat in the river, and saw GROGHANAN put in and fasten his boat to the dock. WHELAN came up and conversed with GROGHANAN on the street. The officer next saw GROGHANAN in a steam-tug at Pier No. 24. On meeting Officers KELLY and DROUT, he told them what he had seen, and they walked down to the end of Pier No. 26, where they found eleven bundles of salted hides, apparently just tossed in carelessly. MURPHY next searched GROGHANAN'S boat and found it covered with salt and hair, apparently the hair of cows, and in the stern was an old tarpaulin full of hair and salt, which he thought had been used in drying to clean up the boat.

Officer KELLY testified that he saw the two prisoners and another man come over to the dock. He saw an officer come over from the dock and the prisoners fasten to the boat. DANIEL BOWMAN, who lives at No. 46 Frankfort-street, identified them as the parties. The prisoner WHELAN said he was not pushed a man on board a vessel, and thought the boat and hair must have fallen into his boat off the pier.

The case was then adjourned to this morning.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

The Republican General Committee.

A special meeting of the Republican General Committee was held last evening. A petition from the Fifteenth Ward, asking the Committee to appoint three Supervisors of Election to sit at the ensuing primary for the election of delegates, elicited considerable debate, during which a motion was made to appoint three Supervisors in each ward and town in the county. An amendment was offered that in any ward or town there be added for the purpose of the primaries, one to select for the election, Supervisors shall be appointed, two from each faction, and one by the General Committee. This amendment was tabled. A motion was then made to revise the rolls of the Seventeenth Ward, and appoint Supervisors to have charge of the matter. This was discussed at considerable length, and finally the appointment of Supervisors in the Seventeenth Ward was favorably considered.

The Citizens' Reform Committee—The New Charter Discussed.

The Citizens' Reform Committee met last evening for the purpose of discussing the proposed new charter. Mr. FRANKLIN WOODRUFF presided, and Mr. DRIGGS opened the matter by stating that on Wednesday evening some farmers from one of the county towns had expressed a wish to have the towns of the county incorporated with the City. He was in favor of such a movement, and offered the following to be referred to the Committee on Legislation:

Resolved, That the Committee on Legislation be and are hereby instructed to prepare a section to the charter, or a bill to be passed by the Legislature, extending the corporate limits of the City of Brooklyn over the entire County of Kings, and that the five county towns be organized into wards, with proper exemption from city tax, to wit: Gas, water, sewerage.

Objection was made that the representatives of the county towns had not asked for consolidation with the city.

Mr. LOW thought the inquiry as to the practicability of consolidating the county towns ought to be referred to a special committee before the Legislative Committee were called upon to provide for consolidation.

Mr. HUBTER said that the town of New-Lotts would agree to come in, while Flatbush would not like to, and there was where the difficulty would occur.

The resolution, as presented by Mr. DRIGGS, was adopted.

Mr. DRIGGS stated if the Legislative Committee had had any conference with the members elect to the next Legislature, when Mr. GOODRICH replied that there had been no conference, for the reason that the Committee had not been in a position to ask aid from members of the Legislature. Mr. PERRY then moved to authorize the Committee to confer with the members elect from this county, with a view to facilitating the business of the Reform Committee. The motion was carried.

The draft of the new charter, presented at the last meeting, was then taken up and discussed; also, the motions pending at the last meeting to strike out the word "Auditor" from the list of elective officers. Mr. PERRY was opposed to giving the Mayor the power to appoint Heads of Bureaus, and thought that the people should elect them.

The further discussion was deferred until next Monday evening.

Gold Sneakers Through a Second-Story Window.

Last evening about 5 o'clock, at the house of A. GUINTERRES, No. 172 Cumberland-street, opposite Fort Green, while the family were in the basement at supper, a gang of thieves entered by a second-story window, and carried off a quantity of personal jewelry valued at $2,000. Before the robbery was discovered Mr. GUINTERRES found the second-story doors locked. He went down and on the door of the front room found the front blinds closed and fastened by a rope. He pulled the window open and saw a man's hand closing a door. The thief then escaped through the front door, and has not since been seen.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Globe on Which We Live.

THE EARTH: A Descriptive History of the Phenomena of the Life of the Globe. By ELISHA RECLUS. Translated by the late B. B. WOODWARD, M. A., and edited by ROBERT WOODWARD, Rector of Bishopsbourne. Illustrated by 230 maps, imported in the text, and twenty-seven page maps printed in colors. New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

The popular estimate of Physical Science has greatly changed since the time when all written story of the vast cycles of development—task "not only mere masses of rock and metals, large or small, but whole continents may be uprooted from the bed of the sea." As the first RECLUS has clearly stated, with a telling wish may almost be called that, strange to the real founder of geological science, and modern events have only summed his work, after a long period of time, remote from our own, perhaps, and therefore the less interesting. It is, therefore, most welcome to us, in an overall dream the diligent foreshadowed, tendencies scientific, which will proceed in final destruction, in ages more remote from our time, perhaps, and therefore the less interesting.

For a popular and yet picturesquely scientific presentation of these matters we are acquainted with no work equal to that of ELISHA RECLUS, the title of which appears at the head of this article. It is attractive in its details, and yet profound in its method, and is a work quoted with greater confidence by the author than many writers of greater pretensions. The work is certainly learned, and executed with great care and research, as the numerous bibliographical references by citation, the author's personal experiments to determine certain points supposed to be beyond or on the border of the scientific, and the frequent use of quotations from other writers, abundantly show. Although the work was originally published in French, it was translated by Mr. WOODWARD, and edited by Mr. ROBERT WOODWARD, with the same care with which the author has evidently executed his own part of the work. The translation is not literal, but is rendered with a freedom which makes the book read like an original work, and not like a translation. The publishers have also done their part well, and the work is issued in a style of typography and illustration which is a credit to the art. The maps are numerous, and are printed in colors, and the illustrations are numerous and well executed. The work is one which will be found of great value to the student of science, and is also of interest to the general reader.

The fantastic yet grand conception, which at least attributed to the earth life and motion, is certainly superior to the theory of the Hebrew Talmudists, who, in their strange notion, represented the earth as a mere plain, poised upon the terrace-like mass of an immovable block sunk in a vast ocean of chaos. Although admirably adapted to the needs of the Doctor's famous asylum, this was more witty than wise, and is now quoted with greater confidence by the author of the work before us, who, in the course of the ages, has proved the truth of the theory of Thales, which was opposed by the Hebrew Talmudists, who, in their strange notion, represented the earth as a mere plain, poised upon the terrace-like mass of an immovable block sunk in a vast ocean of chaos. It is certainly superior to the theory of

The House Apportionment Bill.

After a debate which was not so tedious as it bade fair to be, the House of Representatives has passed an Apportionment bill. It is substantially the one introduced by Mr. COOK, of Illinois, in the last Congress, and championed in this by Mr. FARNSWORTH, of the same State. It adds forty to the number of Representatives, increasing the total from 243 to 283. We append a series of tables showing the distribution of members in the present House, that of the members under the new apportionment, the gain or loss of each State, the gain or loss of the four sections into which the country is generally regarded as divided, and, finally, the percentage of membership belonging to each of these sections:

PROPORTIONATE REPRESENTATION.	43d Congress.	42d Congress.
New-England	11.1 per cent.	9.2 per cent.
Middle States	24.1 per cent.	23. per cent.
Southern States	31.2 per cent.	31.4 per cent.
Western States	33. per cent.	36.4 per cent.
Total	100.	100.

It will be seen by the above tables that the late slave States, exclusive of Missouri—which, in all the interests represented in it, as well as in the character and tendency of its population, is far more Western than Southern—retain their percentage of total membership, while gaining thirteen members. The Middle and Eastern States together, while gaining four members, drop from having 35.8 per cent. of the House to 33.2 per cent., while the West, including Missouri, as above mentioned, gains twenty-three members, and advances from 33 per cent. to 36.4 per cent. The West, as thus made up, has a majority of twelve members over the combined Eastern and Middle States.

If the bill which the House passed yesterday, should succeed in the Senate, the fact may be set down as a decided and substantial triumph for those principles of reform and progress which are now animating the public mind. The section which gains twenty-three members is one the people of which comprehend clearly the material interests affected by national legislation, and they have spoken very plainly in favor of Congress leaving those interests to take care of themselves, without protection and without oppression. In Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri, the latest expressions by Republican Conventions have been strongly for revenue and Civil Service reform. It is noteworthy that the only opposition to the principle involved in the House Apportionment bill came from Democrats, who desired to keep the House at its present size. Evidently the Democracy have small hope of gaining favor in the West.

Up-Hill Work.

When a man undertakes to work, after an honest fashion a system of legal and administrative machinery expressly constructed for purposes of fraud, he is apt to find that the results bear a somewhat small proportion to the effort necessary to produce them. This is the present position of Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN in the Controller's Office. Apart from the facts that he is almost the only honest servant in a prominent position which they have, and that every day since he took office has been marked by some new saving to the tax-payers, the citizens of New-York have this additional interest in his labors that the difficulties thrown in his way mark precisely the points where the City Government is most in need of reform. The repetition of so monstrous an anomaly as the present position of TWEED, for example, should be made impossible in all time coming. Here is a man morally convicted beyond all doubt of having stolen immense sums of public money and who is engaged in postponing a legal conviction by means of wealth accumulated during years of plunder. Yet he finds it possible to maintain a hold upon one of the chief departments of the City which he has robbed; and to pledge the tax-payers to new contracts in which his "take" will figure for a considerable amount. We have yet to hear that TWEED has cut a single sinecurist off his pay-rolls, or has abated one jot of the jobbery and waste which have uniformly distinguished his department. Since the election, as well as before it, he has done his best to stir up the laboring men against the Controller and the Reform administration which he represents. Even now, when every man in the outlying public works of the City has been paid, he finds occupation for the men who get pay for doing nothing by sending parties of them daily to dun the Controller for money which they have never earned, and to increase the difficulties of an honest officer holding his own against what is left of a horde of greater and lesser thieves.

We publish today some details of the administration of our chief public market, previous to Mr. GREEN'S appointment. Practices tolerably similar have prevailed in all the City markets, and the public and the stall-holders alike expect that they should be completely reformed. For this, of course, a patient and laborious selection, out of somewhat unpromising materials, is required. It would be easy enough to fill the markets with a set of men who might be trusted to plunder and oppress at discretion. To find among the class usually ambitious to become inspectors and, what not, servants, who will not abuse their opportunities, is a task which must require from the Controller more time and attention than he can well spare. If Mr. GREEN can organize the markets as he organized the Central Park force some years ago, he will have accomplished no slight triumph in the work of local civil service reform.

The financial farce enacted by our precious Board of Apportionment is at the bottom of half the difficulties which have beset the administration of Controller GREEN. The sums set aside for many public purposes were confessedly inadequate for the expenditures they were designed to cover. The Ring hoped in this way to gain a cheap reputation for economy, and the departments, relying upon a continuance of the knavish system of supplementing deficiencies by the issue of short bonds—to be afterward consolidated and added to the permanent debt—went on spending in total disregard of the sums allotted them. A good illustration of the delusive sham which the work of the Board of Apportionment was intended to be, may be found in the pressing demand of BROWN, the Tammany street-cleaning contractor, for more money. Under the regular contract BROWN was entitled to receive some $498,000 for the year's work—or rather make-believe of work. To meet this, the Board of Apportionment voted about $300,000, and unless the deficiency is made up, the industrious BROWN threatens to leave undone the small amount of street-cleaning which he actually performs. The sooner this swindling contract with all its superadded extra allowances is looked into the better. The contractor has systematically evaded his share of the bargain. He cannot be too soon compelled either to do the work for which he is grossly overpaid, or to surrender the contract which has about two years more to run.

Any one who thinks about the subject at all will make due allowance for the pressure upon the Controller's time and energies, arising no less from unnecessary worry than from needful work; but, at the same time, every one who wishes to see a thorough administrative reform perfected in this City, looks to Mr. GREEN for much of the data which are to shape the details of such a scheme. A full exhibit of the personnel and the distribution of duties and salaries in all the departments and bureaus, such as that lately demanded by the Controller, cannot be too soon made public. The unnecessary and wasteful character of duplicate City and County bureaus should be made as clear as a statement of their nominal functions can make them. The amount of the City debt, and the total of outstanding claims against the City, will, of course, be required to guide the Legislature in providing for the next year's obligations of the City. But the entire system of auditing and authenticating claims should also receive such comments from the Controller as his experience may suggest to be likely to shield the public from the possibility of outrages like those of the last few years. The time for bringing the practical details of the City Government is very near at hand, and Mr. GREEN is the only man at present in office who can be expected to facilitate the work by a full exhibit of what the tax-payers now get in return for the amount expended on the people in their service.

Mayor Hall's Bank Account.

Two or three months ago, when the champions of Mayor HALL were trying to establish his innocence of any participation in the proceeds of the Ring robberies by representing him as a poor man, the TIMES stated, on what it believed then, and still believes, to be good authority, that HALL had had on deposit in the Tenth National Bank of this City from two hundred and fifty thousand to half a million dollars at one time. To this statement, although thrice repeated in the TIMES, no contradiction ever came from HALL himself, from the officers of the bank, or from any other authoritative source. But we find that the Mayor's bank account was made the subject of investigation by the October Grand Jury in which "IKE" OLIVER figured as the great interrogator, and from the testimony taken on that occasion, which has since been published in violation of law, it appears that the statement of the TIMES was contradicted, and the poverty of the Mayor was vouched for with great stress and emphasis. The first witness examined on this point was the Mayor's law partner, AUGUSTUS L. BROWN, who swore that HALL was so poor that he did not feel himself able to pay the expenses of his wife and daughters' trip to Europe, and that they had to pay their own expenses out of some little means which Mrs. HALL inherited from her father and the children from their grandfather." ROBERT B. PALMER, the Cashier of the Tenth National Bank, was then sworn, and he testified that HALL opened an account in his bank in the early part of 1870; that his account had averaged since that time less than $5,000, and that the largest amount he ever had on deposit at one time was between $27,000 and $28,000.

Now, in spite of the negative testimony of Mr. AUGUSTUS L. BROWN and the positive testimony of Mr. ROBERT B. PALMER, we reiterate our statement that HALL has had on deposit in the Tenth National Bank, within the past year, as high as $350,000 at one time, and from that up to half a million, and we dare Mr. ROBERT B. PALMER to produce the books of the bank before an impartial investigating committee to test the truth of our statement.

"Look on This Picture and on That."

On the heels of the execution of ROSSEL comes the acquittal of TONNELET. The case of the latter is less familiar than of the former, and may need recital. TONNELET, then, is a brave warrior who reserved the display of his prowess until after the war with Germany was over. He is an ardent patriot, a worshiper of "La France" and "La Gloire," and he had been waiting an opportunity to illustrate, by some chivalric exploit, his feelings and his aspirations. Such an opportunity presented itself at Montreuil on the 5th of September last. On that day TONNELET met some friends at the convivial board, and poured forth his sentiments in periods of swelling rhetoric. His friends listened and admired. Would that TONNELET, they exclaimed, our good TONNELET, could have led the armies of France to victory! On this, the heroic creature rose to enthusiasm. He would avenge all yet. He would make the hated Prussians quail before him like whipped curs. He would march on Berlin. Like the famed CAIUS MARCIUS, he would "Batter their Volsces in Corioli." In the meanwhile, by way of earnest for so glorious a future, he would decrease the number of the abhorred invaders off-hand. He would kill a Prussian that very day. His friends still admired and cheered; but there was a touch of incredulity mingled with their transports, a drop of doubt to embitter the honey of popular applause. This was too much for the brave TONNELET to stand. In a twinkling he offered a bet, which was promptly accepted, that he would indeed that day kill a Prussian. The stake was to be two litres of wine, and the brave TONNELET won his bet.

Fired with patriotic rage—but not drunk, for, we observe, the defense did not even attempt in the sequel to set up this plea—TONNELET sallied forth into the street. Presently he spied an unarmed German soldier, named DENMULLER. Stalking up to him, TONNELET demanded to know if he was a Prussian. The man smiled civilly and said in barbarous French that he was a Saxon. On this TONNELET deliberately plunged a knife into the poor fellow's heart, and the soldier dropped dead. The assassin has now been tried before a Parisian Court, and, shameful to say, acquitted and released. His advocate was the celebrated LACHAUD. That lawyer pleaded that his client was the victim of a "superb, self-abnegating sentiment of nationality." He was a Sydney, a Bayard, this grand TONNELET, who "only killed DENMULLER out of hatred for the enemy." The eloquent counsel implored the jury not to condemn a "fervid though hasty patriot" against whom the "technical niceties of the law" ought not, at such a time, to be invoked. The jury listened and melted. Nor was the advocate for the accused alone in his humane efforts. The counsel for the prosecution obligingly seconded him. That gentleman plainly showed that his sympathies were with the living TONNELET, rather than with the dead DENMULLER, with patriotic Frenchmen rather than with invading Germans. Who shall say that under this tender strain of love of country even Virtue herself might not swerve, and "Murder take the appellation of Justice"? M. LACHAUD wound up with a torrent of pathetic declamation. The jury blessed "abused innocence" as he had quitted. And the assassin of the unoffending DENMULLER marched off in triumph, "a hero and bon citoyen."

Surely France should hang her head in despair. The contrast between these two almost simultaneous events, between the execution of ROSSEL and the acquittal of TONNELET, is not painful alone, but inexpressibly shocking. On one hand, a noble and gallant Christian gentleman, a credit to his country and her army, is judicially murdered for a technical offense; on the other, a despicable, vain-glorious and blood-thirsty ruffian stabs an innocent and unoffending stranger in cold blood, to the heart, and walks out of the dock a free man. It is impossible to believe that such things can escape punishment; and the cry of execration that has arisen over both these acts from nearly the whole European Press, implies that retribution may not be very far off. ROSSEL cannot be brought back to life, and TONNELET cannot now, perhaps, be punished for his crime; but a just retribution must inevitably overtake those who are responsible for deeds so outrageous, so repugnant alike to justice and to every generous feeling of humanity.

The "One-Term" Principle.

From present indications, it would appear that the platform of the disaffected Republicans who oppose the re-election of Gen. GRANT is to consist of one principle, and that is to be the "one-term" principle. It is natural for men who have but one idea to try and make the most of it; but there is danger of transforming it into a hobby, when it is sure to become a nuisance. We see no occasion for the strife that is now going on among the sore-heads as to who has been the earliest and most persistent advocate of the one-term principle. They all boast that it was first enunciated by WASHINGTON, who, however, failed to practice it himself; and as the people have paid little regard to it since, and have deliberately repudiated it in two successive instances, it would seem not to have made much headway in popular estimation.

Although there are some plausible arguments in favor of limiting a successful aspirant for the Presidency to one term, yet there is one very strong common sense objection, which to most minds is conclusive against imposing any such limit in the fundamental law of the land. It would be an unnecessary restraint put upon the people to prevent them, in a certain unforeseen contingency which might arise, and which is very likely to arise, from doing the very thing that they would most desire to do. In a country where the people choose their own rulers by a popular vote, it looks like an absurdity for them to establish a constitutional provision that would prevent them, or their successors, from electing the man of their choice. It would be a denial of the fundamental principle of popular government. It might happen, as it has happened in one or two instances, that the people would be lucky enough to hit upon the very best man, in their estimation, for President; and when they have been thus fortunate, and the man of their choice has fulfilled all their expectations, are they to be prohibited from re-electing him for another term? How would the Republicans of the country have liked it, if they had been prevented by a constitutional provision from re-electing LINCOLN in 1864? How would the Democrats have liked it, if they had been prohibited from re-electing their great idol, JACKSON, in 1832? There is something puerile in this proposition that the people should bind themselves not to do, in the future, what the future may prove to be the very best thing they can do.

And what are the reasons advanced in favor of such a proposition? The chief, and almost the only one, so far as we have been able to discover, is, that the President may, and sometimes does, use the patronage of the Government intrusted in his hands to promote his re-election to office. Now, in the first place, the influence of this Government patronage is immensely overrated, but, if it were ten times as great as it is, it would be utterly powerless to secure the re-election of a President who was not the choice of the people. JOHN TYLER was, probably, the most notable instance of a President who made use of the entire patronage of his office with the sole view of securing a re-election; and what was the result? When the time arrived for nominating his successor, he was left with scarcely an omnibus-load of supporters. So far from Government patronage being an element of strength to the President who desires a renomination, it is his chief source of weakness, and that, too, irrespective of the manner in which it is used. For every office in the gift of the President there are at least a score of applicants; and while the successful one may be a champion of the political aspirations of his chief, the chances are ten to one that the remainder will be very lukewarm friends, if not open enemies. We doubt whether any man who has had experience in the Presidency, or in any other high office, would not infinitely prefer to be divested of all patronage whatever, if his sole object were to secure a re-election. Take the case of Gen. GRANT for example. It is a well known fact, and has been substantially admitted over and over again in the Tribune, that the sole cause of dissatisfaction with Gen. GRANT among the Republicans of this City and State has grown out of the manner in which he has distributed the Government patronage. If there had been no patronage at his disposal, there would not be a dozen Republicans in the State today to oppose his renomination. The same is true, to a greater or less degree, all over the country. If all the facts could be made known, it would be found that nearly every one of the leading men in the anti-Grant combination, who, for lack of a better plea, are so zealously riding the "one-term" hobby, has some personal grievance to complain of growing out of the distribution of Government patronage.

Chinese in California.

The report of the Grand Jury, called together to investigate the riots which disgraced Los Angeles, California, on the 24th of last October, confirms us in the opinion that the fearful scenes enacted there, on that night, could have been prevented by a judicious use of the Police power. The riot originated in the culmination of an old-standing feud between rival Chinese companies. The Chinese collected in groups upon the streets, and, having previously provided themselves with fire-arms, blazed away at the Police and the white residents as fast as they made their appearance. A policeman and citizen were shot at the first discharge. The crowd then began to collect and the Police to withdraw. Respectable men made frequent efforts to put a stop to the bloodshed which followed, but were finally compelled to consult their own safety by beating a hasty retreat. The testimony, taken before the Grand Jury, shows that the Police did absolutely nothing, and that the wretches who were saved from the fury of the mob, owe their lives to a few resolute citizens, who bore them off even after the ropes had been placed around their necks. No person appeared upon the scene with any semblance of authority. The Chief of Police managed to be out of the way, and his subordinates were so dazed by the fear that they did nothing more than look on at the wholesale lynching. Indictments have been found against thirty-seven persons. Of this number eight are Chinese. It is only right to say of the Grand Jury that it has done its duty most faithfully. The work of bringing the indicted persons to justice devolves upon the District-Attorney and the Police. It remains yet to be seen whether they have performed their part of the work. In the meantime, some of the Americans, resident in China, have shown considerable alarm lest there may be an attempt to seek revenge upon them for the murders of the Chinese at Los Angeles. Among other letters that have come to New-York on this subject was one from the Messrs. OLYPHANT, asking the Chamber of Commerce to call the attention of the United States Government to the riots. If the properly-constituted authorities at Los Angeles had failed to make an investigation, it might be desirable for Congress to order an inquiry; but as the case stands at present there seems to be no good reason to recommend extraordinary measures. For the honor of the State, Gov. BOOTH, of California, will see that justice is done, and as we have faith in his integrity and wisdom, we recommend that the matter be left entirely in his hands.

MINOR TOPICS.

To anybody who wants to understand what a Tammany Police Commissioner's sense of duty amounts to, we commend the perusal of Judge BOSWORTH'S speech in defense of the revocation of the order about the Internationalist parade. There is no attempt made to show whether the order was right or wrong. Its withdrawal is based simply on the assumption that not only did the Internationalists want to parade, but that certain newspapers backed them in a determination to defy the law. A more flimsy pretense for backing out of a ridiculous position could hardly have been invented. The fact is that the Commissioners had allowed too many invasions of the peace of the day of rest to pass unquestioned, to be able to resist this one. The people are thus reminded of one other penalty which they have paid for having the peace of the City committed to the care of a handful of unscrupulous politicians. The redemontade in which the Communists exult over their triumph, and the anthem which they propose raising on Sunday next, will also serve to demonstrate the necessity of teaching proselytizers of all foreign creeds and nationalities that very shortly one comprehensive enactment will be deemed sufficient to prevent them from abusing the hospitality which shelters them.

The Sun, which has been publishing for a year past almost daily, a list of forty office-holders under the Federal Government whom, it charged, were relations of Gen. GRANT, has now reduced its list to twelve. It was forced into making this correction by a simple statement of facts in the TIMES. But it is now trying to make up for the thirty-eight lies it was compelled to retract, by publishing the list of twelve, with its own lying comments attached thereto, and representing the whole as an extract from the TIMES of Dec. 8. The Sun is probably the only newspaper published that lies systematically and from principle, and that daily insults its readers by assuming that they prefer falsehood to truth. That such a paper should be the leading organ in the crusade against President GRANT is, perhaps, natural, but that its course upon this or any other subject can have any effect but to injure the cause it represents is scarcely credible.

Among the reported assets of the Ocean Bank is one hundred thousand dollars of protested paper of the NEW-YORK PRINTING Company. This Company, as we have shown in our exposures of the Ring frauds, received $1,078,-629 54 from the City and County Treasury during the years 1869 and 1870 for work that any other printing establishment would have been glad to do for one-fourth of that sum. The President of the New-York Printing Company is CHAS. E. WILBOUR, a former editor and present stockholder of the New-York Tribune. Both he and CORNELIUS CORSON, the Secretary of the Company, are each reported to be worth at least half a million, which they were, probably, too much engaged in finding safe keeping for, to attend to so trifling a matter as honoring their business engagements.

Managers of opera grumble, and with no little show of justice, that beside paying a high rent for the only available New-York house, they have to surrender some hundreds of the best seats to the stockholders. A new opera-house, much further up the island, and in the heart of the fashionable quarter, is now talked of, to be on a scale of great splendor, with a large stage and a comparatively small auditorium. In the meantime, if a low rent, or no rent at all, is an object, attention may be drawn to an advertisement in the Independance Belge, which offers the theatre in Metz on precisely the last-named terms to any one who will give two or three performances a week, beginning in January. The Metz Theatre, like the Metz fortifications, is described as having undergone thorough repair, and the people who have had no show to speak of since BAZAINE left, as being excessively anxious to be amused.

They have been having a lively time in the Paraguay Chamber of Deputies. Rumors came to us some time ago that the disputes between the President and the Congress had assumed a menacing aspect. The opposition has for some time been urging the President to resign. The latter watched his chance, and, on pretense of checking insurrection, arrested the chief members of the opposition, and, after the old plan, made himself Dictator. At the end of October there was a free fight in the Chamber of Deputies, the spectators in the galleries taking part. Empty gin bottles, knives and revolvers were freely used, four persons were killed and twenty wounded. The air, at last accounts, was full of threats from the contending parties, and it is evident that another act of this reputable drama is yet to be performed.

What is the reason that in new countries, and especially those to which people flock for precious metals or stones, such queer names are given to the localities? Here we find in the new South African Diamond Fields outlandish designations for the settlements such as "Du Toit's Pan," "New Rush," and "Paddy-whack's Elbow." These are very fair companions for our Californian "Jackass Gulch," "Shirt-tail Cañon," and "Murderer's Bar." Probably the spirit of enterprise that leads people into these wild regions extends to nomenclature, and the scorn of conventions and love of novelty that distinguish such adventurers find expression in all that they do. It is a fact to be noticed elsewhere as well as of that of San Francisco.

There was a story in Blackwood a few years ago, the purpose of which was to illustrate the propriety of marrying one's cousin. The moral that the tale was a mature an curious personage, French notaries of the period did not impair the lively interest of the plot, and the novel commercially affords pages most replete "with a purpose." A matter more to interest us, the last action by the author of John Halifax, Gentleman, has arisen. Her books are written so advisedly, or dictated, sometimes with a personal object. Mr. CHARLES M. P., the unfortunate spokesman of this unwise Session of Parliament, has this morning an able article on the question of municipal reform. Reports, however, are rife, to the effect that the Government will not be left impracticable; but, on the contrary, will, before the close of the Session, be strong, and we doubt whether Hansard will materially affect the vital division on Mr. CARTWRIGHT'S bill in the House of Commons.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatricals.

"JOHN GARTH" AT WALLACK'S THEATRE.

Wallack's Theatre has been densely crowded for the last three nights to see a new play called "John Garth." The basis of this drama was laid originally by novel of Mr. F. W. ROBINSON'S, and the adaptation has been made by Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM. Mr. BROUGHAM has given to the stage many plays, and always with a certain measure of success. His share in "Lucky Jim," "Lucky Joe," however disguised for effect, and unscrupulous rends, gave that popular comedy point and brilliancy to which it has owed much of its enduring acceptance. We know not how far in other essays Mr. BROUGHAM'S dramatic work will stand the test of years. Time, that "executioner of the dead, adviser of the wise," is prone to pass by many of this class of labor, and to show products to be ephemeral, which at the first blush seemed rich with promise. It can, however, be said of Mr. BROUGHAM'S plays, that they have always been amusing at the time, that their author is not only a capital actor, but, partly perhaps for that reason, a considerable master of stage effect, and that that last supreme test of merit, a crowded house, always attends the announcement of a new production from his hands.

"John Garth" is a melodrama in the literal sense. It is full of startling situations, of mysterious mutterings, of bitter hatreds, and of amorous justacositions. People come on and go off to music, and patter love and fury to the accents and hurry of the orchestra. All this gratifies the lore of the marvelous and agreeably accords with old-fashioned preferences. In real life the movements of mankind are thus compelled by melodic stimulants, but such plastic license has ever given most to such entertainments, and presumably will do so for a long time to come. We can say, with candor of "John Garth," that it is one of the best of these melodramas we have seen of late, having probability, sense about what, in such work we need not be over-exacting, the piece has really a great deal to recommend it. It is, to begin with, full of life and "go." The incidents are well conceived or well chosen, they follow each other with tact and rapidity, the climaxes are bold and significant, and the audience is always really anxious to hear the whole story out. A further merit is—and with dramas of bustling action the merit is rare—that the characters are endowed with not a little individuality, and, apart from the wondrous scenes set forth by them, are interesting in themselves. The cast of "John Garth" is subjoined:

John Garth	Mr. Lester Wallack
Gregory Dearham	Mr. John Gilbert
Paddy Brennan	Mr. Charles Fisher
Antonio Ramirez, the spy	Mr. J. B. Polk
Bartholomew	Mr. E. M. Holland
Owen	Mr. J. Peck
Rose Dearham	Miss Rosey Mordaunt
Minnie Garth	Mrs. Clara Jennings
Mary Chatterwicke	Mrs. John Wood
Marie	Miss Lizzie Mathewson

The plot of this drama is intricate, but it is by no means perplexing or unintelligible. To some extent the unities are set at naught, and divers things are supposed to have happened before the curtain first rises, with which we are made familiar by colloquial retrospection. John Garth, the hero, left home many years ago. He was a strange fellow, so strange as to be called "Mad Garth," in the country round. One of the forms of his eccentricity consisted in abandoning his young child, and going off to South America. There he became President of one of the minor republics, and experienced the usual fate of such magistrates in such being tumultuously deposed. He then returns home—and here the real action begins—chiefly to seek his daughter, whom he finds a young woman. She is in charge, and bearing the name of her father's worst enemy, one Dearham, and a number of misapprehensions, and much harsh dealing follow this discovery. The situation is rendered worse for John Garth by the opportune arrival of one Barrath who has been his enemy in South America, for no reason in particular, and continues to cherish a like amicable sentiment in England under the same incentive. Barrath kindly opens a "swing bridge," in the hope that in the night Garth will tumble through, but Dearham falls through instead. Then Garth is tried for the crime and acquitted. A number of incidents follow which chiefly tend to the discomfort of Garth, who really has a very hard time of it. In the sequel, however, all comes right. Those who have disliked Garth most find out what the audience know all the time, namely, what a very fine fellow he is; and his triumphs wind up not only by the recovery of his daughter's love, but by his marriage with the woman who has made herself most detestable to him during all the previous complications. We are not quite sure that the audience entirely sympathize with this cheerful conclusion, but they are at least so well pleased with all that has gone before that they are quite willing to allow Garth to espouse anybody he likes, and so applaud the happy result.

The acting of "John Garth" is undeniably excellent. Mr. LESTER WALLACK has, in the hero, a character of highly unusual qualities, and has studied them keenly and well. Garth, a man of deep and sensitive feeling, "warped by the world in disappointment's school," a bit of a misanthrope, and yet full of generous impulses at bottom, is by no means an easy figure to embody, and Mr. WALLACK deserves great credit for portraying as he does with so difficult a creation. The nuances of expression which, as he ripens with the progress of the action, he throws out in this personation, show Mr. WALLACK to be an artist of genuine and delicate powers. John Garth is one of the most versatile and vigorous pieces of character acting we have ever seen from Mr. WALLACK, which is saying a great deal, but not too much. Mr. JOHN GILBERT might be better dried than in Gregory Dearham, but the very night of this sterling artist is no agreeable to the public, so frequent with memories of thoroughly good work, and so suggestive of a certain modern conscientiousness in everything he does, that it is hard to raise questions of special adaptability, or to do aught but praise. We have left ourselves little space to speak of the really admirable acting of Mr. CHARLES FISHER as Garth, and yet that performance could be commented upon with quiet zest at length with all truth and propriety. It would suffice to say for the present that Garth is finely seen at Mr. FISHER'S best character "line," and that it will doubtless become even better, as we think, with repetition. Of the other parts we need say no more journey than that they seemed to be filled to the satisfaction of the audience. "John Garth" has made a decided impression, and there is every sign that it will have a long and lucrative run.

THE SARTLET CONCERT.

To-night, at Steinway Hall, the last chance, with the exception of Saturday's matinée, is afforded to hear Mr. SARTLET and the other first artists of Mr. DOLBY'S troupe in New-York for some time to come. The party are to start directly after for a tour of some length in the Provinces, and we earnestly advise those who have not yet heard them, in some respects, unsurpassable performers, not to lose their last opportunity. The programme for this evening has been selected with a view to uncommon variety as well as to high excellence, and will furnish the scope for the display of the company's abilities. Not to have heard Mr. SARTLET will hereafter, we predict, be a serious reproach, and it will be a pity that any of our lovers of music should incur it. The multitude of to-morrow will only place, in choice stead, at Steinway Hall. This will be the farewell entertainment for the season in the Metropolis of the Dolby troupe, and a capital programme will be given on the occasion.

Music of the Day.

The third representation of the new series of Italian opera performances at the Academy takes place to-night. "Martha" will be sung. The debut of Mlle. NILSSON in the part of Violetta and concert of the Philharmonic Society continued for the delivery of Music this afternoon. "The Vocal Society of New-York" gave a concert whereof the programme consisted of glees and madrigals, at Steinway Hall last evening. The hall was filled by a most fashionable audience.

MR. BARNUM'S NEW ENTERPRISE.

We look soon for any further reference to the novel features of Mr. BARNUM'S show at the Rink than is contained in a suggestion to the reader to turn for information on the subject to another column. The crowded condition of the Rink makes this hint even useless, so accustomed is the public to look for attractive objects whatsoever Mr. BARNUM'S name appears with the managerial title affixed to it.

MORE ABOUT THE GAS.

The Condition of Things Not Improved—Poor Lights and High Bills Everywhere.

Gas consumers above Thirty-fourth-street, in the Metropolitan Gas Company's district, continue to be vexed and annoyed at the poor quality of the gas furnished to them. No improvement, they say, has been observed in their gas-light, notwithstanding the fact that their grievances have been published at length in the TIMES.

A large grocery store on the corner of Broadway and Forty-second-street, visited by the TIMES reporter, although furnished with a great number of gas-burners, all of them lighted, was found to be dimly illuminated.

"This is the kind of light we get," said one of the proprietors; "it tells its own story."

At the St. Cloud Hotel, on Broadway, the inquirer was told that the gas bills of the house, amounting to over $1,000 per month, were thought to be sufficiently large to buy good gas-light, but such was not the fact. The gas was out of the quality that might be expected.

A number of shop-keepers were visited on Sixth, Seventh and Eighth avenues, and Broadway above Thirty-fourth-street, and all of them were found to be complaining of the poor gas company, and hoped that the TIMES would continue to agitate the question until the companies either granted the reform asked for, or were forced to do so by the Legislature. Residents of the district between Thirty-eighth-street and Fiftieth-street, in Madison, Fifth and Fourth avenues, whose complaints have been published in the TIMES say that a deaf ear has been turned to them by the gas company, and that they expect to suffer indefinitely unless the TIMES agitation of the subject brings about a correction of the evil. The people of Yorkville reiterate the complaints made by residents of other parts of the city. One gentleman, with a mixture of jest and earnestness, said that he wished every night when he turned on the gas, and watched it feebly burning from the jets like so many tallow dips, that he could with the utmost extravagance sit and use the whole of the Metropolitan Gas-works' product at the One-Dollar rate per thousand feet. These, and the gentleman "so might have a new company and more light. As this summary method of getting rid of the evil is impossible," he added, "we must look to the TIMES and public opinion to force the Company to a reward for the rights of consumers."

Through the meagre gloom of the avenues and streets of the district last evening, revealed a dismal state of things. The gas flickered, smoked and burned a dull red or sickly blue in the shop windows, and its light feebly struggling from the street lamps was rendered still more dismal by being forced to make its way through dirty and neglected panes of glass. Nearly everybody to whom the subject was mentioned complained of the enormity of the gas bills, and believe that the Company often charges them for gas they never use. Said one of the storemen, "These gas meters-clocks make enough money by all appearances to be just and bearable with the public. Why, Sir," he added, "look at the immense amounts of capital put into their hands by consumers, who are forced to leave them a deposit to secure the payment of gas bills. They pay an interest of seven per cent. upon the money so deposited, it is true, but these deposits make the Company's capital seem very small for companies, and people who use their gas are forced to lend them such sums of money as they demand at such rates of interest as they choose to give, under penalty of being cut off from such gas-light as is vouchsafed to them."

Hudson County Expenditures.

The Hudson County Board of Freeholders met yesterday. The Committee on County Farms reported that there were 360 paupers in the almshouse, 66 of whom are lunatics. The Penitentiary Committee reported 67 males and 16 females in the County Prison, and 66 prisoners in the Jail. The expenditures of the Board from May 1 to Nov. 1 were reported to be as follows: For bridges, $20,196 19; on outstanding contracts yet to be paid, $18,270; Lunatic Asylum, $2,000 00; printing and stationery, $3,497 69; public grounds, $7,139; new county road, $6,622 71; on account of Finance Committee, $10,919 77; on account of Passaic River Free Bridge, $20,800; for transcribing Bergen County records, $4,446 12; for the County Almshouse, $29,

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS.

Passage of the Apportionment Bill by the House.

The Retrenchment Debate in the Senate.

Confirmation of Judge Williams as Attorney-General — The Coal and Salt Duty—A Disposition to Repeal the Eight-Hour Law—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14, 1871.—The Apportionment bill finally passed the House today, fixing the number of members at two hundred and eighty-three. The discussion did not develop any new points, save that there seemed to be a growing feeling that the number of members might not be increased, and if the debate had lasted a few days longer it is probable that the Senate would have come to that conclusion. The bill as passed is the substitute of Gen. GARFIELD for the bill of Judge MCCRARY, making the number of Representatives one hundred and ninety-three instead of two hundred and seventy-three, as proposed in the first bill. The increase is caused by giving to Ohio, Illinois and Missouri each one more member than the number of Ids would have given them. This results in an arbitrary and unjust discrimination, for it virtually gives those States a member at a ratio of about 130,000, while the other States are given Representatives on a ratio of 127,000. An important amendment offered by Mr. PORTER, of New-York, providing that no Territory shall be admitted as a State unless it has a population sufficient to entitle it to a member, was agreed to by a large majority. Gen. BURLER'S amendment providing for a uniform day of election for members of Congress, was agreed to after a modification fixing a time which will allow several States to amend their Constitutions, which now fix different days of election. The Senate will hardly act on the bill before the Holiday recess. The reason why the Secretary of the Interior did not make the apportionment contemplated by the law was that he could not have made it until September, in any event that it was not imperative, and that the near approach of the session of Congress, which already had the matter under consideration, made it altogether desirable that it be left to their decision.

THE BANK EXAMINER IN NEW-YORK.

Mr. CHARLES CALLENDER, the Bank Examiner of New-York, sent his resignation here yesterday. Whether it will be accepted or whether he will be removed from office is not yet learned. Controller HULBURD is still in New-York looking into the affairs of other banks, acting under the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury.

THE FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

The House did no business today beyond the Apportionment bill, and will probably do little more before the Holidays. It may be considered certain that if the Senate will pass Mr. MORTON'S concurrent resolution to adjourn on the 22 December, the House will assuredly agree to it.

THE CHICAGO BUILDINGS.

The House Committee on Appropriations and the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, had a conference today and agreed finally to a bill fixing the cost of the new Court-house, Custom-house and Post-office at Chicago at $6,000,000, including the ground. The bill also provides that the location shall either be the old site of the Post-office, or within two squares thereof, so there will be no embarrassment by overreaching real estate owners.

NOMINATIONS.

The nomination of Ex-Senator WILLIAMS for Attorney-General in Mr. AKERMAN'S place was sent to the Senate today, as the best means for avoiding the pressure sure to follow as long as the nomination was withheld. The Senate paid Judge WILLIAMS the compliment of a prompt confirmation, without a reference. Mr. AKERMAN, it is now understood, will, on his retirement, return to Georgia and resume the practice of law. Gen. S. J. SWEET, of Illinois, was also nominated for First Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Gen. SWEET has for some time past been Supervisor of Internal Revenue for that State, and was warmly recommended by a large majority of the delegation.

THE SENATE DEBATE OF YESTERDAY.

Mr. WILSON is responsible for another day of warm and in some parts acrimonious debate in the Senate. Yesterday when everybody else was ready to vote on the questions involved in the Retrenchment Committee resolution, he insisted on asking the adjournment of the subject till to-day to give him a chance for a speech. At 1:30 o'clock he took the floor, and made a speech in the best spirit, favoring the wishes of SCHURZ and TRUMBULL. He was evidently a good deal frightened in view of a possible break in the Republican Party, and no doubt took the course best calculated, in his judgment, to avert such a result. But his speech effected nothing except to open the floodgates of talk. Mr. NYE took up the subject, and with good humor told more truth than was needful or palatable to some of the Senators, charging them with sinister motives in their pleas for reform. He dealt some pretty severe blows of this character upon Mr. SCHURZ, who was obliged to defend himself. He called NYE a jester, whose place was in the theatre. He also addressed himself to some things Mr. CONKLING had said yesterday, which needed attention, evidently, if he intended to preserve any appearance of honesty in argument. Mr. TIPTON then told the story of how he was friendly to President GRANT till he lost all his patronage in Nebraska, and now he complained that he had not even a Post-office left him by the Administration. Of course he is a reformer, although Mr. TIPTON caused shouts of laughter by his uncouth and ridiculous manner, and while he displayed more bitterness than any of his disaffected brethren, he should be accredited with superior honesty, because he owned the cause of his hostility, while they attempt concealment. After his speech the vote was taken on TRUMBULL'S amendment, and it was rejected by 35 to 24. Of the 24 who voted for it there were 11 Republicans and 13 Democrats. The resolution, as offered by Mr. ANTHONY, revising a standing committee of seven on investigation and retrenchment, was then adopted. This saving been done, Mr. TRUMBULL again offered the original Retrenchment Committee resolution in a new form, this time as a resolution of instruction by the Senate to make the investigations specified during the present session. It was supposed this would be carried without opposition, but the consent of one or two Senators to know certainly that the power to sit during recess was not in the resolution, delayed action till a new discussion had a chance to spring up, in which TRUMBULL warmly repelled the insinuations that he could be otherwise than sincere, and made a counter attack on Mr. MORTON. This Mr. MORTON replied to, remarking that those who stood at the street corners and made loud prayers were not the most pious. To this Mr. TRUMBULL essayed to answer, when Mr. SHERMAN took the floor from him by a call to order for speaking more than once, and read him a fine lecture, to which he made a heated reply. By this time the question at issue was lost sight of. The Senate went into Executive Session, and afterward adjourned till Monday. So it cannot be said that the fight as ended, though probably Monday Mr. TRUMBULL'S last motion will be adopted without more debate. The Anti-Administration men in this onslaught have gained nothing, since they do not care to have any investigations unless in their own way. The action of the supporters of the Administration before the Winter is over will dispose of the charge that honest investigation is feared.

COAL AND SALT.

The Finance Committee of the Senate was called on by Mr. TRUMBULL today, in the Senate, to know what it was intending to do about reporting back the bills for the abolition of the duties on coal and salt. Mr. SHERMAN replied to the effect that the Committee was prepared to report back these bills at the pleasure of the Senate, but that the whole subject of tariff legislation would be involved in a consideration of the report, and the Committee thought it would be better to wait till the tariff and internal tax discussion should be considered. A little later in the session the House would initiate measures which would make the consideration of the two subjects by the Senate possible. Mr. TRUMBULL did not appear to be satisfied with this account of the Committee's plans, and gave notice that on Monday next he would move to discharge the Committee from further consideration of the bills, and thus bring them directly before the Senate.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Mr. WILSON takes every opportunity to urge upon the Senate the passage of a bill for the relief of the workmen whose wages were reduced with the going into effect of the Eight-hour law. Today it had a few minutes' consideration before the close of the morning hour, which developed a good deal of favor for the amendment offered by Mr. TRUMBULL for the repeal of the Eight-hour law. Mr. CONKLING and Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, both took decided positions in favor of the repeal. The bill was finally referred to the Appropriations Committee. It is felt by many to be a delicate subject to handle in the present condition of parties, and it is somewhat doubtful if a direct vote will be gained on the issue of repeal. The Amendment will be disposed of in some way so that the bill as it came from the House can be passed.

A BRITISH WAR CLAIM DISMISSED.

The American and British Commission delivered an opinion in the case of EDWARD ALFRED BARRETT against the United States. The agent and counsel for the United States, in his argument on the motion to dismiss, maintained that, notwithstanding the specious attempts to disguise the true nature of the claim under an allegation of the destruction by the United States, in war, of property hypothecated by the so-called Confederate States for the security of their bonds, it is really neither more or less that a claim to hold the United States liable for the debts of those lately in rebellion against them, contracted in the very course of such rebellion in aid of it, and from which it drew its chief support. The language of the Treaty itself is believed to be abundantly specific in excluding claims of the character in question; besides, the Constitution of the United States contains an express prohibition of the assumption, or payment of, these debts by the United, or by any State. The Commission today declared that the United States are not liable for the payment of debts contracted by rebel authorities. The rebellion was a struggle against the United States for the establishment as a portion of country belonging to United States of a new state in the family of nations, and it failed. Persons contracting with the so-called Confederate States, voluntarily assumed the risk of such failure, and accepted its obligations subject to the paramount rights of the parent State, by force, to crush the rebel organization, and seize all the assets and property, whether hypothecated by it or not to its creditors. Such belligerent rights of the United States to seize and hold were not mitigated or created by contract with the latter, and when such seizure was actually accomplished it put an end to any claim to the property which the creditor otherwise might have had. The Commissioners are therefore of opinion that after such seizure the claimant had no interest in the matter and the claim was therefore dismissed. The Commission adjourned till Saturday.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERALSHIP.

The Senate, in Executive Session today, took up the nomination of GEORGE H. WILLIAMS, to be Attorney-General of the United States, and unanimously confirmed it without reference to a committee. This was in accordance with the usage and courtesy in every case where the nominee has been a member of the Senate—his character being sufficiently known without requiring formal inquiry. The following is the correspondence between Mr. AKERMAN and President GRANT.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13, 1871.

To the President:

SIR: I hereby resign the office of Attorney-General of the United States. This resignation to take effect, in accordance with the wish which you verbally expressed to me today, on the 10th day of January next. Very respectfully,

(Signed,) A. T. AKERMAN.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13, 1871.

To the President:

DEAR SIR: In tendering the accompanying resignation of the office of Attorney-General permit me to express my grateful sense of the kindness which I have uniformly received from you during my service in the office, and my ardent wishes for the continued success of your Administration. Very respectfully,

A. T. AKERMAN.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13, 1871.

Hon. A. T. Akerman, Attorney-General.

MY DEAR SIR: Accepting your resignation as Attorney-General, to take effect on the 10th day of January, permit me to renew the assurances of my high regard for you personally, and my appreciation of the zeal and application which you have brought to the office which you are about to resign. I regret, therefore, that even a shadow of reproach should, in any degree, rest upon the uniform harmony which has constantly existed, not only between us, but also between yourself and colleagues in the Cabinet, all of whom, I know, unite with me in hearty wishes for your future prosperity, health and happiness. Your personal note accompanying your letter of resignation is gratefully received as a token of reciprocity of kind sentiment which I shall ever appreciate.

Very respectfully,

U. S. GRANT.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE—WASHINGTON, Thursday, Dec. 14.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, of New-Jersey, presented a memorial of the Venezuela Steam Navigation Company, composed of citizens of New-York and New-Jersey, complaining of the seizure of their vessels by the revolutionists of that country, and asking the United States Government to procure redress. In presenting it he said that the officers of this country who had dealings with Venezuela had many grievances to complain of which might yet necessitate severe measures on the part of our Government.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, said that he had examined the question in dispute, naturally hoping and expecting to find his own country in the right; but he regretted to have to say that he had found that in the wrong.

The petition referred to is from J. H. HANCOX, the President of the Venezuela Steam Transportation Company, and prays that a gunboat be sent to demand the release of the steamers Herguerias, Dudley Buck, and San Fernando, and of their officers and crews. The petitioner says that in the year 1869 the Venezuelan Government passed an act opening the navigation of its rivers to foreigners, with power to sail under their national flag; that during that year the Company dispatched those vessels from the United States, but on the 12th of October, Gen. HERNANDEZ, the chief of the revolutionary party, seized them and converted them into war vessels. The petitioner took proofs of the capture of these vessels and the imprisonment of their officers, and forwarded them to the State Department. Not only the release of the vessels, but indemnity for the damages sustained, is demanded. The petition was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Mr. BUCKINGHAM, of Connecticut, presented a memorial against woman suffrage, and said: More than ten thousand of the most refined and respectable women in the country have so signified to Congress their unwillingness to have the responsibilities of suffrage thrust upon them. This protest is said to contain many of the most respected, talented and influential women of ten different States. Over sixteen hundred of them live in Connecticut; and in looking over the list I find that I know many of them. They are not mannish women, but women of good sense, and their judgment is entitled to consideration. They do not say anything about the abstract right of suffrage, but they say that having already their full share of the burdens and responsibilities of life, they fear that others more bold than they may succeed in having imposed upon them other burdens and responsibilities unsuited to them. Therefore they ask Congress to protect them from these dangers. They say that the extension of woman suffrage to them will be averse to the interests of the working women; that it will introduce disturbing elements of discord into the existing relations of society to the general good order of the country. I sympathize with them. I see no possible benefit which can arise by the extension of suffrage to women, specially to them or to the country.

SERVICES OF WOMEN DURING THE WAR.

Mr. CONKLING, of New-York, presented the petition of New-York soldiers in the late war, recounting the services of women in the war, and asking Congress to make some provision for the acknowledgment of their heroic and charitable work.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. REED, of Arkansas—For erecting a Government building at Little Rock.

By Mr. SCOTT, of Pennsylvania—To promote the efficiency of efficient seamen for the navy of the United States; providing that in addition to the present force of the United States shall be annually received into the service no boys, between the ages of fifteen and seventeen years, to serve as apprentices until the ages of twenty-one years, at such times of year as may be fixed by the President of the United States, and at the end of that time to be entitled to examination for promotion to the grade of seaman; and seamen, however, not to be in addition to the whole number of seamen at any time allowed by law.

By Mr. PATTERSON, of New-Hampshire—To regulate the admission of pupils from all parts of the Union into the Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

By Mr. HARLAN, of Iowa—For the relief of certain settlers on public lands in Iowa under the Homestead laws.

By Mr. POMEROY, of Kansas—Granting lands to aid in the reclamation of desert lands in Utah Territory; also, to incorporate the Pioneer Land and Cache Valley Land Company, with a grant of lands in Utah and Idaho.

By Mr. KELLOGG—Imposing tonnage duties and for other purposes; providing a duty of thirty cents per ton in lieu of all tonnage duties now imposed, and prohibiting the collection of any taxes or duties on tonnage or cargoes by the several States, except wharfage and dockage.

DUTIES ON COAL AND SALT.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, asked Mr. SHERMAN, as Chairman of the Committee on Finance, when the Committee intended to report the House bill repealing the duties on coal and salt.

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, said that the Committee were ready to report the bill, with amendments; but, regarding the Internal and external taxes as parts of one great system, they thought it unadvisable to take up the tariff question separately from the question of internal taxation, and therefore they were waiting for the House to develop somewhat further the course it intends to pursue on the question of taxation.

Mr. TRUMBULL—Then I give notice that to-morrow I will move to discharge the Committee on Finance from the further consideration of the House bill repealing the duty on coal and salt.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, the Senate took up the House bill to equalize the pay of working men under the Eight-hour law.

Mr. TRUMBULL'S amendment repealing the law was also read. Mr. TRUMBULL said that no one could be more in favor of rewarding and elevating labor than he, but this law had never had any such effect. It had done the working men no good whatever, but on the contrary it had done great harm by exciting unpleasant feelings between those who are employed in the Government, and working eight hours, and those who are working outside and working ten hours. He thought, therefore, that it would be better for the working men and for the country to repeal the law.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, also favored the repeal of the law. It was preposterous to enact a law of this kind in the first place, and it was degrading to the working men.

Mr. WILSON asked Mr. TRUMBULL to withdraw his amendment, so as not to embarrass the original bill.

Mr. TRUMBULL withdrew the amendment.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, of New-Jersey, presented a petition of citizens of Newark, praying for the passage of a law to prevent the importation of foreign paupers and criminals.

Mr. FERRY, of Connecticut, renewed it. He said he could not vote for the House bill, because it would give to the Eight-hour law a retrospective construction contrary to that intended by the framers of the law, and erroneous in itself. He remembered that when the Eight-hour bill was under discussion the advocates of it distinctly stated that it was not designed to secure more ten hours' pay for eight hours' work.

Mr. THURMAN, of Ohio, said that the advantage would it be to the working men?

Mr. FERRY—Its advocates claimed that the working men would have more time for culture than under the old system.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Finance.

THE "RETRENCHMENT" COMMITTEE QUESTION.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of Mr. ANTHONY'S resolution to create a Committee on Retrenchment, with Mr. TRUMBULL'S amendment authorizing it to sit during the recess, and send for persons and papers.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, warned his Republican friends that they were placing their party in a false position before the country. Already there were millions throughout the country who believed that an attempt had been made in the Senate of the United States to shield the Administration and the party in power from control of it. He, of course, did not believe it to be true, but it was very important to appear right, as well as to be right. In 1868 the Committee on Retrenchment had been organized, and during the four years of its existence it had righted a great many wrongs, but there still remained work for it to do. He had no sympathy with those who desired to assail or embarrass the Administration. The Senate was itself a part of the Government; responsible with the President for the successful administration of it, and the best friends of both parties knew who were most vigilant in seeking out abuses, and most active in taking measures for their correction. He was in favor of both the pending propositions. He thought it unwise for the Republicans of the Senate to go before the country with a divided vote upon this question of retrenchment. The public prints showed that there was a general conviction abroad that a sense of one of the friends of the Administration were trying to cover up abuses, and, therefore, he hoped there would be a unanimous vote for Mr. TRUMBULL'S resolution, so as to let the people see that the Republicans were determined to keep the Administration pure in all its departments. He had no sympathy with the plan of carrying out reform abstractly by taking of the guards of swindlers in New-York. There were Republican thieves as well as Democratic thieves, and a Republican thief was to him far the more hateful of the two, because he brought disgrace upon the Republican Party. But, notwithstanding the defects of the present Administration, it was the most honest and most efficient of any of its predecessors. No previous Administration had ever been so prompt in punishing delinquency among its officers.

Mr. BLAIR, of Missouri—The Senator is very boastful about the purity and vigor of the Administration. I wish to call his attention to a case in Arkansas, where the Collector-Attorney and a Marshal were both removed from office for procuring an indictment against a man for violating a law of the United States.

Mr. WILSON—I don't know whether that was so or not.

Mr. SCOTT, of Pennsylvania, said the preliminary measures for the removal of the District-Attorney were undertaken before the close of the finding of the indictment referred to.

Mr. BLAIR—I have equal means of knowledge, and I say that the officers were turned out of office for finding an indictment against a person for violating a law of the United States.

Mr. WILSON said he was not boastful of the Administration. He simply desired to see it, and, as he believed, he had that the Administration was seeking progress in the right direction, although a good deal more of it was necessary. He was not one of those Republicans who thought the Democratic Party dead. He expected to encounter them in full force next year, but he was not willing that friends resisting their efforts in any degree in the vain hope that they would meet no vigorous opposition in 1872.

Mr. NYE, of Nevada, thought that the subject before the Senate had been greatly magnified. This was an attempt to revive the old Committee on Retrenchment, which had died a year ago by common consent. That Committee had been created originally as a special instrument to correct the abuses that had grown up under the Johnson Administration, and had gone on until about a year ago, when, finding that in the pure light of a really Republican Administration it had no work to do, it quietly died, and was supposed to have been buried. Soon after the death of that Committee, certain gentlemen in the Republican Party, who thought the President was becoming too popular, devised the scheme of civil service reform, and under that cry they were now attempting to revive the old Committee, with all its extraordinary powers of sending for persons and papers.

Mr. THURMAN, of Ohio—The Senator objects to sending for persons and papers. Where was his voice, on the memorable occasion, when a Committee of the House of Representatives was examining into the conduct and affairs of Senators, to discover whether they had not been bribed to acquit ANDREW JOHNSON, and were ransacking the telegraph offices to get at something that might compromise those Senators?

Mr. NYE—Just where it is now. Give me another such set of circumstances, and I will vote for it again. But there is no such occasion now. There is peace in the ranks now, save with one here and there who would be greater than his master. [Laughter.] The Senator from Missouri (Mr. SCHURZ) talked yesterday about a Mr. LEET, who is connected with the Custom-house in New-York, and called particular attention to the fact that during the war he was on Gen. GRANT'S staff. For what purpose did he mention that fact? Plainly for the purpose of insinuating that the President had stooped to dabble in the carriage business of the New-York Custom-house. He (Mr. NYE) did not wish to be regarded as a defender of LEET, but he did think that the fact that he had served in the army ought not to disqualify him from earning an honest living by carting in New-York. The tone of the remarks of the Senators who wanted this Committee revived, showed what their object was. They wanted it as an investment with which to manufacture a little dust to throw in the eyes of the people next year. The Senator from Missouri (Mr. SCHURZ) would write a report for the Committee, full of portentousevils, and it would not be published until just before the Presidential nomination. [Laughter.] The Senator from Massachusetts, (Mr. WILSON,) had announced himself in favor of this Committee, and had gone into one of his periodical spasms of affection for the "laboring man." [Laughter.] but if he was really the friend of labor, why did he not assist by his vote and influence certain proposed measures for the relief of hard-worked servants of the Government, whose salaries had Committees passed to enable them to live decently and respectably? [Laughter.]

Mr. SCHURZ—We always listen with pleasure to the Senator from Nevada, because, however disposed we may be here to earnest disquisition, we all like a little comedy now and then, and however severe may be some of the things that Senator says, we always forgive him on account of the exceedingly funny manner in which he says them. To be sure, the legitimate sphere of the comedian is generally within the walls of a theatre, but if the Senator is satisfied with the role he plays here nobody else has reason to be dissatisfied. Those who defend a bad cause always resort to a certain line of defence. They attempt to throw suspicion on the motives of those who attack; so the Senator from Nevada, (Mr. NYE,) like other Senators here, makes no attempt to disprove any of the facts that I stated yesterday, but simply throws aspersions upon my motives and accuses me of insinuating that Mr. LEET'S service in the army should prevent him from obtaining employment in the civil service of the Government, and that the President had something to do with the cartage business in New-York. I wish to say a few words in reply to the Senator from New-York, (Mr. CONKLING.) He said yesterday that the investigation of the New-York Custom-house was closed up by the Committee on Retrenchment last year. The Committee did undoubtedly believe that the case was closed, for it had reason to believe that when such scandals as it exposed were laid bare, the Administration would jump at the chance to put an end to the disgrace. But it turns out that they were vastly mistaken, for the same malodorous system of robbery exists down to this day, in spite of the exposures made by the Committee. The Senator asked also why we have proposed no legislation to remove these abuses. Because no legislation is necessary. The abuses were created by executive action in the administration of the Custom-house, and they could be done away with by the executive action. The Senator objects to what I said of the power which sustains this system. I did say, "having laid the evidence before the Senate," that when the most respectable merchants of New-York had protested against this system of robbery, when Secretary of the Treasury had, time and again, pronounced against it, when the Committee on Retrenchment had pronounced against it, and when, still, it was sustained and kept alive down to this very day, I did say, in view of this evidence, that there must be some mysterious power and influence strong enough to overcome a decent regard for public opinion, and stronger than the Secretary of the Treasury himself.

Mr. PATTERSON, of New-Hampshire, here interposed to make an explanation, and in reply to a remark by Mr. TRUMBULL said: I do say that there are inspectors in the Custom-house in New-York who stated before the Committee that they took each, four oaths of their official oaths, and in violation of the laws of the land, they had taken bribes, and that they took bribes every time they discharged a vessel; and I say, further, that the agents of the steam-ship companies told me that they could not get their vessels discharged without bribing the officers.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts—I should like to know whether those men are continued in office?

Mr. PATTERSON—I have no knowledge of their ever having been removed. I know nothing about it.

Mr. SCHURZ—It appears to be clear that there is a monopoly on the North River, at New-York, worth from $20,000 to $30,000 a year to those who have it; that it is dominated by the leading merchants of New-York as a system of robbery; that it has been investigated by a special commission sent there by the Secretary of the Treasury; that in the report of that Commission the system is denounced as a very great abuse; that it has been denounced and condemned by Commissioners on Retrenchment, and condemned by it also, and that it continues down to this very day. I defy any Senator, then, to say that the inference that there must be some mysterious power sustaining that system is not justified. The Senator from Indiana (Mr. MORTON) says that my remarks yesterday cast a reflection on the Republican Party. Does he? Does he or all politics to be in favor of reform? And yet when a member of this body attempts so lay bare a gross abuse the cry is raised that he is trying to injure the Republican Party. My motives have been reflected upon, and I and those with whom I act have been called what object we pursue. I am ready to tell the Senate. My object is to remove, to denounce and, if I can, to have corrected any and every abuse whenever I can lay my hand upon it, without regard to how it will affect the interests or advantages of a party, and without regard to whether this or that person may like it or not. I am in favor of reform, and I am in dead earnest. I do not mean to denounce abuses on the other side, and to shield abuses among my own friends. I want to put the iron to the very bottom of the sore, and unless we do that we do nothing.

Mr. TIPTON, of Nebraska, followed in support of Mr. TRUMBULL'S proposition. He cited Mr. MORTON'S statement yesterday, that the object of those who befriended that proposition was to show that great corruption existed under the present Administration, and said that there was only one way to dispose of that business, and to set themselves up as the only men who hate corruption. Now, I desire, to say to those gentlemen, whoever they may be, that for one I shall not allow them to monopolize their business. I claim to be as good a reformer as any of them, although I do not make such high pretensions.

Mr. TRUMBULL said Mr. MORTON was extremely kind to accept his statement, but he declined to answer him (MORTON) for his Republicanism, and denied his right to call him to an account. That Senator (Mr. MORTON) claimed to be a reformer, but he had a queer way of showing it. Not long ago, in a speech in St. Louis, he had eulogized the civil service as it stands as present.

Mr. MORTON remarked that in that speech he had said of the civil service that, while there were many reforms and improvements which could be made in it, and which the Republican Party would make, he did believe that on the whole we had the best civil service in the world, and he did say the same now.

Mr. TRUMBULL—Well, if there is anywhere in the world a worse civil service than that of the United States I pray God to deliver that people from it. [Laughter.] I feel less disposed than ever to submit my Republicanism to the test of the Senator from Indiana, (Mr. MORTON,) after his declaration that we have the best civil service in the world. My Republicanism is not partisan. I care nothing for it except as a party of great principles; and if it ever comes to be used as a cover for frauds and iniquities, the honest people of the country will overwhelm us, as they ought to.

At 5 P. M., without reaching a vote on Mr. TRUMBULL'S motion, the Senate went into Executive Session, and soon after adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. BURCHARD, of Illinois, offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to the number of persons employed, and the total compensation paid thereto, in the collection of customs for the fiscal year ending the 30th of June, 1871, in the United States, and separately in the Districts of New-York, Philadelphia, Boston, New-Orleans, Baltimore and San Francisco; also the amount of additional compensation paid to such employees as fees, moieties, storage and contingent expenses; also the total amount paid in the same time in the United States, for the collection of customs and for the erection, repairs, completion or furnishing of custom-houses. Adopted.

Mr. KELLOGG, of Louisiana, offered a resolution directing that the portion of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury relating to the establishment and continuance of ship-building in the United States, &c., be referred to the Committee on Commerce, and that said Committee be directed to inquire into the expediency of paying a premium per ton upon American-built iron steamers. Adopted.

He also offered a resolution that so much of the report of the Secretary of the Navy as refers to the establishment of iron ship-building yards and docks be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs, and that they be directed to inquire into the expediency of establishing iron ship-building yards and docks at some point in the Mississippi Valley, and report by bill or otherwise. Adopted.

APPORTIONMENT.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. BUTTERFIELD, of Massachusetts, in the chair, and resumed the consideration of the Apportionment bill.

Various propositions were made and discussed, principally turning on the number of Representatives of which the House should be composed. The numbers finally evolved by the rejection of Mr. GARFIELD, of Ohio, 283 amendment was also adopted, on motion of Mr. POTTER, of New-York, providing that no new State shall hereafter be admitted having a less population than the number fixed as the basis of representation. Finally the Committee rose and reported the bill.

Mr. NIBLACK, of Indiana, moved to lay the bill on the table. Negatived—yeas 60, nays 145.

Mr. FARNSWORTH, of Illinois, moved to strike out Mr. POTTER'S amendment. Negatived—Yeas 87, nays 116.

The bill was then passed without division.

It provides that the House shall consist of 283 members, distributed as follows: Maine, 5; New-Hampshire, 2; Vermont, 3; Massachusetts, 11; Rhode Island, 2; Connecticut, 4; New-York, 33; New-Jersey, 7; Pennsylvania, 26; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 6; Virginia, 9; North Carolina, 7; South Carolina, 5; Georgia, 9; Indiana, 13; Mississippi, 6; Louisiana, 5; Ohio, 20; Kentucky, 10; Tennessee, 9; Indiana, 12; Illinois, 19; Missouri, 13; Arkansas, 4; Michigan, 9; Florida, 1; Texas, 6; Iowa, 9; Wisconsin, 8; California, 4; Minnesota, 3; Oregon, 1; Kansas, 3; West Virginia, 3; Nevada, 1, and Nebraska, 1.

The House then, at 4:30, adjourned until to-morrow.

The Remington Guns.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In reply to my communication of the 24th November, Commander CASE, of the Ordnance Department of the navy, in a letter to E. REMINGTON & SONS, published in the Tribune of Nov. 30, relative to the Remington rifles being returned to the Springfield Armory to be overhauled, says: "There is not a particle of truth in the statements relative to the arms furnished by you to the navy. Not one single gun of the ten thousand has been returned to the Springfield or any other armory to be overhauled."

I was not aware of Messrs. REMINGTONS having furnished any rifles to the Navy Department; and did not refer to those, but to the first ten thousand Remington rifles made at the Springfield Armory for the navy. This ten thousand went from the Navy Department into the hands of a "gentleman of influence" to fill Messrs. REMINGTONS' orders.

Now, Commander CASE, some or all of those ten thousand Remingtons had been sent to naval stations. Our navy have their barrels browned; the "gentleman of influence" required them bright. These that had been sent from the armory were returned, stripped, some repaired, browning taken off, barrels brightened, "re-assembled," boxed up and shipped to order of "gentleman of influence." Those who had the handling of these guns, some say one in ten, some, one in twenty-five, some, one in thirty-five; "had the firing-pin stock fast, or firing-pin spring broken." This work was done on these guns, and if it is not overhauling, what is it? And, remember, they had not yet been in actual service. The above will hardly be denied, for it is truth.

And you, Messrs. REMINGTONS, will you please call upon Commander CASE for the name of the "gentleman of influence," and let the country see if he will do your bidding with as much alacrity as in denying the above FACTS. If not, will you or your agents tell us all about it, for it is a public matter.

As to Gen. DYER'S denial of my statement that the Remington guns for trial had been returned to the manufacturers, I ask him to admit my facts, on the construction the Department put upon the words "entirely unserviceable," which means, in their vocabulary, only fit for the scrap-heap. But otherwise, I hold to the truth of the statement, and refer to such guns as were returned by Capt. SUMNER MUNSON, Ninth Infantry, United States Army.

As to Gen. MCCALLUM'S letter, it denies nothing. He simply bases the question, consequently the facts remain the same. The Board put into their report things that they could not have known the truth of, the gun being out of their hands some thirty-six hours; and of the three United States officers who composed the Board, they took the one that broke down the worst.

I still hold to the original proposition that the Remington gun is an UNSAFE ARM, and reiterate my statements in the NEW-YORK TIMES, Nov. 24.

WASHINGTON MARKET FRAUDS.

The Old Regime and the New—A Record of Blackmailing and Robbery—How Tammany Politicians Worked a Rich Placee.

There is no doubt that Washington Market has proved a mine of wealth to the Ring, and it may be safe to say that during the last four years a million of dollars of both private and public money has been squeezed by them from this source. Until lately the occupants of this market, holding their masters in dread, have not dared to make their grievances known. The reason for this reticence is not far to seek. For a wordjot complaint they were liable to be turned out of the Market, to have their stalls and fixtures taken from them, and without means of carrying on their business, to be driven into the streets, to gain their living as they best could. Forty years ago the rentals of the stalls in Washington Market were at an almost nominal rate. From time to time the price has been augmented. No objection was made to this, because with increase of population, stands had become valuable property. Without any theory of vested rights, it has been the custom that occupants during life had the privilege of retaining their stalls, of course on the payment of the rent, and on submitting to certain rules and regulations. Then each occupants had a right to dispose of their stalls, in case of retirement, to other parties, assuming the same responsibilities also becoming acknowledged. A permit was given by the Controller which took the form of a lease. No repairs were ever made by the City, but always at the cost of the occupant. In West Washington Market, situated at the wharf, from the moist and shifting character of the soil, repairs were constantly necessary. These repairs were of such frequent occurrence as to be a constant source of expense. As the business on the wharf portion increased, repairs of a more permanent character became a necessity. Restricted as to ground, it was impossible to carry on the business without adding a story here and there. Whenever this was done the party making such improvement was invariably mulcted to an amount ranging from $100 to $400.

About a year and a half ago a leading commission house in West Washington Market overhauling their premises, built a second story. The Superintendent called on them: "What are you doing?" "Raising my stand." was the reply. "If you do that it will cost you $100." The answer was, "But this improvement will cost us over $1,000; why should we pay $100 more?" "It makes no difference," was the reply; "you have got to pay it." As work had commenced, and their building but half completed, a check was given for it. It lies before us now. It is dated Oct. 18, 1870, for $100, on the First National Bank. It is indorsed J. FEORE, and re-indorsed W. H. JOHNSON. There is a sequel to this. Some time early this year a fire broke out in the building next door. As a conflagration seemed imminent, all the papers in the unburned building were hurriedly carried out in order to save them. The fire next door was extinguished, and no great damage was done, but the permit of the improved stand, which had been held a number of years, was lost. The party naturally desired to have a new one. Five hundred dollars was unblushingly asked for it. The loser of the permit demurred at this. "Get the permit" was asked from time to time to no effect. "No; I have not found it yet," was the answer. The City Hall was besieged in vain for a new permit. At last one was brought by the Clerk of the market. "I want $400 for this," was remarked. "We can not stand it, it is rascally fraud and we know it," was the reply. "Well, it is true I could have been $200, but in consideration of the $100 paid by you for improvements, we have let you down easy." Then a notice of suspension was served, equivalent to a notice to quit, which would eventually have ruined a business which had taken a lifetime to build up. They were forced to pay the $400. We have this check, dated March 20, 1871, is for $400, and is drawn to the order of M. S. FARRELL or bearer. It is indorsed M. S. FARRELL in ink, J. FEORE in pencil and J. R. MILLER in ink. The permit given is dated Feb. 27, 1871, signed by Controller CONNOLLY, indorsed by FEORE. From its date it looks as if it had been held back until the party could be bled.

Leaving this stand, going either opposite or along side, similar cases were told us. One in the immediate neighborhood paid $400 for permission and permission to improve. A third in the same locality built a stand in 1866 and then paid $200 for a permit. Three parties then made up the firm. Shortly one of the parties was bought out, a permit was paid for; finally last Spring another partner sold out, and an additional $125 for another permit was demanded and paid. In this latter case the sum asked was not large, as we suppose the clerical labor was not excessive; in fact, it consisted in simply erasing one name on the permit. These permits are printed on paper about 10 by 8 inches, and a clerk could fill them up in two minutes.

We now present a case which seems full of hardship. We have so far thought it not worth while to give the name of the party concerned, but this one seems such a flagrant abuse that we will present it in all its details. Nineteen years ago Mr. JOHN MCGOVERN, then, as now, a well-known and estimable man, purchased a stall in Washington Market, as a butcher, and paid $6,500 for it. Two years after occupying, he states that he was forced by the notorious JIM FISK to pay $1,000 more for it. In 1869 he was frequently visited, and attempts were made to extort money from him by those in power. In 1870, some business enterprises having almost ruined him, his health became affected, and he was bedridden for some months. He however still kept his stand in the Market, having hired some competent person to take charge of it. When he was thought to be dying, without a moment's warning his stall was taken away from him. Mr. MCGOVERN's wife called on the Controller and implored him not to take away the only means she or her husband had of providing bread for a numerous family. Mr. CONNOLLY seemed to assent to her request, but eventually refused to interfere, and the stall was given away to P. H. CARROLL and to J. LANG—P. H. CARROLL, being a son of PATRICK CARROLL, then, we believe, in some office connected with the Market. Mr. MCGOVERN fought through this illness, and was obliged to pay CARROLL and LANG the sum of $4,500 for his own stall. In order to raise this sum, his wife was forced to mortgage the last piece of property she had in the world, and even so add the good will of the stall as collateral to the person advancing the money. The check given for this transaction is dated July 3, 1870, on the Pacific Bank, is for $4,500, and drawn to the order of PATRICK CARROLL, and indorsed by him. Mr. MCGOVERN never owed anything for rent. In fact, this man has paid in all $6,000 for his stall. Even some of his fixtures were taken by P. CARROLL, which he had to pay for. Could reasonably go further than this? Asking Mr. MCGOVERN the reasons for this more than ordinary robbery, he reply was, that he had always been, when in health, free-spoken, and had refused to be cheated. This case, we repeat, seems to be of a peculiarly cruel character, and ought to be capable of redress. More high-handed robbery is not imaginable.

Had the Writer been willing to transcribe all the injustices of this nature in Washington Market alone, whole columns of the TIMES might have been filled with them. Let it be said to their credit—if any credit can be given to such official plunderers—that no discrimination as to party was made. Members of political clubs of the most approved Tammany origin, rented stalls in the market, and all to be equally pilled. Hundreds of stalls have been taken away from honest men who were too poor to be robbed, and a business acquired by the toil of years has been swept away in a moment.

Fortunately these things are fast coming to an end. Though sadly taxed by the depredations of fraud left in the ashes of the late Controller, Mr. GREEN is fully aware of the gross outrages perpetrated for years in our markets, and proposes as speedily as possible to inaugurate a perfectly honest system of management. We are particularly assured that this robbery in rents is to cease, the granting of permits and charging enormous sums for them will be done away with. A clerical fee of a legitimate character is all that will have to be paid. As to the permission to build or improve, we feel certain that within certain wise limitations no extortion will be permitted. If the City of New-York has to thank Mr. GREEN for millions already saved, we should think those occupying the market as City tenants must breathe more freely when they consider that their interests are now at last in the hands of an honest man.

Panel-House Thieves Sent to the Penitentiary—Strange Connection of a Police Sergeant with One of Them.

At the Court of Special Sessions, yesterday, before Judge DOWLING, MINNIE GRIFFITHS was charged with robbing a Spaniard named PASQUALA PANTERZA of $16 by the panel game in a house in Bleecker-street, and JOHN G. DAVIS was charged by the same complainant with assaulting him in the street after he had left the house in company with the female prisoner. The woman represented herself to the landlady, when taking the rooms, to be the wife of Sergt. GRIFFITHS, of the Fourteenth Precinct, but on cross-examination by Judge DOWLING, she said she was not married to the Sergeant, but that she had lived with him for a number of years, and she admitted that he had visited her at her late lodgings. Justice DOWLING found both prisoners guilty, and after commenting severely on the character of the offence, sentenced her to six months' imprisonment in the Penitentiary. The male prisoner, whom the Court believed to be connected with the girl in the panel robbery, was sent to the Penitentiary for one year.
